MacDonald Sees Cooperation of U. S. in Movement From Viewpoint of "Idealism, Not Armaments."

BY CHARLES M. MCANN

London, February 12.—Labor's vision of world peace and world reconstruction, the hope of Britain's millions of toilers that the old days of quiet and plenty may come again, found voice Tuesday when Ramsay MacDonald, first laborite premier of the nation, outlined his party's policies before the house of commons.

The labor government, MacDonald announced, is considering details of a memorial appealing for a world conference on reconstruction.

Prospects Promising.
News of this wide project, possibly the most significant feature of any of the labor policies Mr. MacDonald discussed, came in answer to a question before the premier began his address. Telling of the conference plan, he added:

"I am glad to report that prospects are promising."
Later, in the course of his address, MacDonald developed the conference idea, suggesting that reparations, debts and the limitation of armaments were among the questions involved in his reconstruction project. He expressed the hope that cooperation for a general settlement might come within the year.

The premier's speech carried many notes of the spirit of world cooperation. He declared the government honored to reach an agreement with France and Belgium regarding the palatine, that it wished to settle all outstanding questions with Russia, and that he wished to see both Germany and Russia in the league of nations.

Sees American Aid.
MacDonald expressed the belief that when America saw that problems were being worked out from a viewpoint of "idealism, not armaments," she might cooperate further in European affairs.

In the course of his address, which lasted an hour and three quarters, the prime minister touched all phases of the internal situation. Trade was essential to the solution of unemployment, he said, stressing the laborite policy of work rather than doles. He declared there would be no recourse to tariffs or bounties to aid agriculture, and told of laborite projects to solve the unemployment problem by building houses that would rent for $1.98 a week.

Loving Cup Stirs
Hate in Hearts
Of Losing Side

Brick-Hurling Battle Starts When Hosts Award Themselves Attendance Prize.

New York, February 12.—A loving cup led to battling and a police riot today.

The trouble started when 20 members of the Side Wheelers, a Brooklyn social club, left a dance hall at which they, as hosts, had awarded themselves the silver cup for having provided the largest attendance. Twenty members of other clubs dissenting in the award, rushed the Side Wheelers in an attempt to wrest the cup from them.

The fight progressed from a fist fight to a brick-hurling affair in which three men were badly hurt.

The enemies became allies, however, when ten police charged into the fray and the bluecoats had to threaten to shoot before peace came.

The loving cup was smashed by an enemy brick.

COOLIDGE SCORED
BY CHAIRMAN HULL

President Resorting to Technical Precedents in Ignoring Senate Action in Denby Case, He Says.

Washington, February 12.—The refusal of President Coolidge to ask for the immediate resignation of Secretary Denby as requested in the senate resolution was declared in a statement tonight by Chairman Hull, of the democratic national committee, to have "failed to meet the public expectation."

"It is greatly to be regretted," Chairman Hull said, "that President Coolidge did not seize the opportunity to demand the resignation of Secretary Denby immediately following the revelations of loans from Doherty and Sinclair to former Secretary of the Interior Fall. Having failed to act then, it is not surprising that he fails to act now in response to a senate resolution calling for Secretary Denby's resignation."

"President Coolidge was confronted by the alternative when these revelations were made of demanding the resignation of his secretary of the navy and beginning a thorough cleaning up of his administration or of temporizing and delaying action in order to hold together the forces represented by the prelatry special interests and individuals which controlled the republican convention of 1920, nominated his predecessor and have since controlled the republican administration for their own private gain and which are now behind his own candidacy. He failed then to meet the public expectation, as he fails now to meet public demand by following the suggestion of the senate. Instead of grasping the situation by the throat, he resorts to recitation of technical precedents concerning the prerogatives of the executive and of the congress.

"No president ever had a clearer case or better justification to act than President Coolidge had in the case of Secretary Denby."

M'ADOO TO PLACE

OF STATE LEADERS

Ready To Subordinate Self to Best Interests of Party if Friends Advise Course, He Says.

SUPPORTERS TO HOLD
MEETING IN CHICAGO

"If They Think I Am Unavailable, I Shall Withdraw and Fight as Private," He Asserts.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, February 12.—William G. McAdoo announced tonight that he would leave to the leaders of his movement in each state the question of whether his employment as counsel by the O. L. Doherty Oil companies had made him unavailable as a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination.

A request that a conference of such leaders—men and women—be called in Chicago as soon as possible is made by Mr. McAdoo in a letter to David L. Rockwell, of Ohio, his campaign manager in charge of national headquarters at Chicago. The letter was made public here tonight by Mr. McAdoo.

McAdoo's Statement.
"I want this conference to consider and determine," the former treasury secretary wrote, "whether or not the fact that an honorable professional service rendered by me to a client, but having no relation whatever to the oil leases now under investigation by the senate committee, is prejudicial to my leadership in the cause of progressive democracy."

"If they think I am unavailable," he added, "I shall gladly withdraw and fight as a private in the ranks; if they think I should lead, I will do so with all the power that is in me."

Beavers' Illness
Delays Hearing
For Mrs. Candler

Cases Against Her, W. J. Stoddard and G. W. Keeling Postponed.

Until Chief James L. Beavers, principal witness for the prosecution, recovers sufficiently from illness to permit his appearance in court, there will be no court action in cases now on docket against Mrs. Asa G. Candler, Sr., W. J. Stoddard and G. W. Keeling, following the arrest of those three in an apartment at 48 Juniper street Saturday afternoon.

The case was checked by Recorder George E. Johnson Tuesday morning when Chief Beavers failed to put in his appearance, despite protests of Ben Conyers, representing Mr. Stoddard, and Mr. Keeling, who insisted on immediate trial. Mr. Conyers expressed the opinion that the testimony of Captain A. J. Holcombe, who was with Chief Beavers when the arrests were made, would be sufficient.

When Joseph M. Wood, assistant city attorney, opposed such a move, Assistant Chief E. L. Jett explained Chief Beavers' absence as due to illness. Mr. Wood insisted that the police head's testimony was highly important and Judge Johnson postponed the case. Thursday morning was first set as the time for trial, but it was later decided to delay the cases until a physician should pronounce the chief able to attend court sessions.

Defendants in Court.

The three defendants were in court. Mrs. Candler was accompanied by Mrs. J. B. Brown, her sister. They arrived fifteen minutes before the case was called, remaining in Chief Beavers' office until summoned by the clerk.

Mrs. Candler, Mr. Stoddard and Mr. Keeling are charged with violation of section 1768 of the city code, which refers to the arrest of persons taken in places where intoxicants are found. The charge is the result of the arrest of the three Saturday afternoon in the Juniper street apartment by Chief Beavers and Captain Holcombe, and the charge by Chief Beavers that there was a partially consumed bottle of whisky on a table in the room at the time of the arrest.

Attorneys Cam Dorsey and Carlton W. Binn represented Mrs. Candler at the hearing.

BY WILL IRWIN.

We left Colonel Charles R. Forbes of the veterans' bureau and his friend Elias H. Mortimer in the Drake hotel, Chicago, where, according to Mortimer's testimony before the senate committee, he had lent Colonel Forbes $5,000 of Thompson & Black money. Thence they proceeded on their junket and joy-ride in the hospital sites of the Pacific coast.

M. L. Sweet, Forbes' private secretary, joined them at Denver. From there on, Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer and Sweet were the nucleus of the expedition. Two officials of the public health service accompanied them in a general way; but these men avoided "parties" or automobile joy-rides, and attended to business. Other characters in the drama of the veterans' bureau flash in and out, however—such as Black, of the Thompson-Black combination; O'Brien, supervising architect of the proposed hospital at Livermore, Cal., and especially J. B. Hurley. The latter is a new actor, but entrance had been fore-shadowed.

Telegraphs to Hurley.

In the brief period between his return from the army in France and his appointment at Washington, Forbes was vice president of the Hurley-Mason Construction company at Tacoma. On leaving for the Pacific coast, Forbes had telegraphed to Hurley:

"Meet me in San Francisco without fail Sunday, June 25."

A brief sojourn in the pure mountain air of Denver; and the expedition breezed on to warm, hospitable California. San Francisco was the first stop. Here, accounts of the atmosphere surrounding the party began to vary considerably. Mortimer told the senate committee that it was moist, if not wet. Forbes declared that he saw little or no drinking; that

Tut's Tomb Reveals Scene
Of Golden Magnificence

Luxur, February 12.—In the stifling heat of the underground tomb of King Tutankhamen, men of the twentieth century lifted the great marble lid that was lowered in place on the sarcophagus by hands of the ruler's subjects more than 3,000 years ago.

Scientists and officials, men of a modern civilization, looked in awe and wonder at the golden magnificence of other days within a mummy case of sheet gold, more like a statue than a coffin.

The sheet gold is modeled in relief with an exquisite likeness of the youthful king, wearing a crown encrusted with lapis lazuli.

Lid of Coffin Lifted.

This was the picture in Tuesday's ceremonies when the lid of the ruler's coffin was lifted in the tomb in the Valley of the Kings.

At 2:05 p. m., a party of sixteen scientists and Egyptian officials, led by Howard Carter, descended into the tomb. Blocks and tackles had been rigged to lift the great cover. The small group swayed forward eagerly as native workmen began the task of lifting the marble top of the sarcophagus. It was a 25-minute job, and Carter and others impatiently joined in the work.

As the lid was raised the watchers saw a huge mass of dark brown cloth. Carter, trembling, turned back this covering, gradually revealing the radiant beauty of the king's inner grave. Beneath the cloth was disclosed a

SYNOPSIS OF EXPOSE.

This is the third instalment of the amazing story of Charles R. Forbes and his handling of the $900,000,000 appropriated by the government for the rehabilitation of American boys wounded in the war. The first two instalments told how Forbes, a drummer boy in the marine corps, later a deserter from the signal corps, later a construction gang foreman and politician, met Senator Warren G. Harding in the Hawaiian Islands, became his friend and was appointed the head of the Veterans' bureau.

The second instalment told how President Harding's sister was the innocent cause of bringing together E. H. Mortimer and Colonel Forbes. Forbes told Mortimer that congress was about to appropriate 17 million dollars for hospitals and equipment and advised Mortimer to have himself made the agent of companies supplying hospital commodities. Mortimer, however, was after bigger game. He became the agent of J. W. Thompson and J. W. Black, partners in half a dozen western construction companies, who were in Washington looking for business. Mortimer was to receive 35 per cent of their profits.

The builders, Mortimer and Colonel Forbes, became intimate. Forbes gave Mortimer a list of the prospective hospital sites—confidential government data. Meanwhile the Livermore, Calif., hospital site deal had been put through at tremendous expense. And when Forbes and Mortimer were in Chicago on one of the many merry inspection trips—Mortimer testifies—Forbes asked for a $5,000 loan. Mortimer could not furnish it, but he obligingly arranged with the construction company head, Thompson, for $5,000 for Forbes. This, Mortimer told the senate committee, he took to the head of the Veterans' bureau in $500 bills. He found Colonel Forbes sitting on the floor of his parlor suite in the Drake hotel shooting craps with a lady. Forbes smiling, said he would give Mortimer a note for it.

he himself touched alcohol only once. That was when, feeling poorly, he took a little hot whisky as a remedy. There is some documentary evidence concerning this disputed point. As Colonel Forbes and his friends were working north from San Diego, J. W. Black telegraphed to Mortimer from Seattle concerning hotel reservations and added: "Have arranged to meet all the Scotch generals, General Haig in command. How many do you want?"

"Pup" McWhorter Charged With Assault and Battery on Davis.

A warrant charging assault and battery was sworn out Tuesday afternoon in municipal court against W. H. (Pup) McWhorter, former Georgia Tech football star, by C. J. Davis of 15 West Harris street, who charges that McWhorter attacked him last Sunday. Davis alleges that McWhorter threatened to "stamp me in the ground" because he (Davis) filed suit against him, asking damages as a result of the former's alleged abduction from the Central U. M. C. A. almost a year ago.

McWhorter, Henry Lyons, prominent young Atlanta clown; Claire Frye, former Tech football star, and J. E. Fincher, an Emory university student, are alleged to have kidnaped Davis.

According to Attorney William Schley Howard, counsel for Davis, his client was attacked last Sunday afternoon by McWhorter. Davis charges that he was walking on Highland avenue with three companions when McWhorter drove up in an automobile, in company with several other young men, whose names were not mentioned.

Scene Humiliating.

Leaving the car, McWhorter is alleged to have seized Davis and dragged him out into the street. Davis, according to Mr. Howard, was subjected to great humiliation and physical injury during the 20 minutes McWhorter held him in the street.

Forced An Apology.

According to Mr. Howard, Davis filed suit against McWhorter asking damages as a result of the incident at the Y. M. C. A., in which the four young men were said to have dragged Davis out of the building, placed him in an automobile and after carrying him to the home of a young Atlanta society girl, forced him to apologize to her on bended knee, for an alleged insult.

McWhorter had not been located Tuesday night, court officials stated, but his arrest was expected Wednesday.

Statement by Simmons in Jacksonville Follows Announcement in Atlanta.

In the face of announcement by imperial officers of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan to the effect that William Joseph Simmons, founder and emperor of the order, has withdrawn from membership and for a cash consideration of $148,500 relinquished all his rights and interests in the "invisible empire," Associated Press dispatches from Jacksonville Tuesday night quoted Simmons as denying that he had "sold out," and declaring that he has merely severed relations with the organization and has disavowed his royalty of $1,000 per month.

While it was announced by Paul S. Etheridge, imperial klonsel, that under the agreement with Simmons all litigation pending between Simmons and imperial headquarters would be terminated, a dispatch from Little Rock quoted Imperial Wizard Evans' attorney in that city as saying that the $150,000 damage suit of Evans against Simmons will not be dropped unless Simmons retracts certain alleged libelous statements concerning Evans. Attorney Etheridge stated that he has information that Simmons has retracted in writing the statements and that the damage suit will be dropped.

Difference in Figures.

Conflicting figures as to the settlement sum received by Simmons were given out Tuesday. In the Jacksonville dispatch Simmons declared he had been paid $90,000 cash. Attorney Etheridge stated that he was actually paid $148,500 cash, in the presence of a prominent Atlanta banker who was familiar with the details of the transaction.

Episode Should Not Affect Work of Helping German Children, She Says.

New York, February 12.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, in a letter to Major General Henry Allen, made public today expressed the hope that the fund for aid of helpless German children would continue to find generous support. Her letter, in answer to information from General Allen that the flag incident at the German embassy at the time of Mr. Wilson's death had alienated numbers of workers for the cause and caused the cancellation of some gifts, follows:

"The information contained in your letter of February 10 with respect to the starving children of Germany causes me genuine distress. As a private citizen I will not venture to comment on the official aspect of the recent flag episode; but I am convinced the feeling of my husband on the phase of the matter presented by you would so entirely accord with my own that I do not hesitate to express the hope that your fund in aid of helpless German children may continue to find generous support."

BATTLE STARTED ON OIL COUNSEL

Senator Dill Predicts Senate Will Never Confirm Nomination by President of Silas Strawn.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, February 12.—An organized fight in the senate against confirmation of Silas H. Strawn and Albee Pomeroy as special government counsel in the oil cases promises to furnish another dramatic chapter to the rapidly unfolding story of the naval oil leases.

Definite indications that Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, dominant figure in pressing the inquiry, is opposed to the lawyers selected by President Coolidge, provided the chief development of the day in the oil investigation.

The oil committee considered the nominations at two executive sessions but without reaching a decision. Between times it heard six witnesses at public sessions in efforts to obtain more light on the circumstances surrounding the leasing of the Teapot Dome reserve to Harry F. Sinclair and the California Elk Hills reserve of E. L. Doherty.

A Closed Incident.

Members of all senatorial groups showed a disposition to lay to rest as a closed incident the refusal of President Coolidge to entertain the senate's request that he demand "immediately" the resignation of Secretary Denby for his part in the leases.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, announced that on Thursday he would introduce a resolution proposing a full investigation of all of the official acts of Attorney General Daugherty and of all branches of the department of justice under the stewardship of Mr. Daugherty.

George Croel, former chairman of the committee on public information, told the oil committee he had been employed by Doherty as "publicity consultant" five months after he left the government service, but had resigned after three months because of a disagreement with his chief. His salary was at the rate of $10,000 a year. He also disclosed that he had interested himself in obtaining a lease for oil wells in Teapot Dome and had taken the matter up unsuccessfully with Secretary Daniels.

Full details of the second storm which struck the cruiser after she had been driven aground by the first norther encountered have not reached the navy department. A naval board of inquiry is now in session at Charleston, S. C., going into all the circumstances surrounding the wreck.

REVELATION OF GREED
CALLED "HUMILIATING"

Coolidge Urges People Not To "Mingle Innocent and Guilty in Unthinking Condemnation."

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

New York, February 12.—Filled with scorn and indignation at the corruption revealed in the Teapot Dome scandal, President Coolidge has taken a Lincoln day pledge to effect immediate, adequate and unshrinking prosecution, both criminal and civil, of the persons involved. There will be no politics and no one will be spared.

Thus, speaking before the National Republican club here, did the president answer the cry of anger which has gone up at this gigantic scandal. He voiced his humiliation at the spectacle which has just been unfolded to the astonished gaze of the country, but he asked that the public not lose faith, reminding them that the government which survived through the trials of Lincoln's day will maintain itself now.

Leaves No Doubt.

When the president finished he had not left a shred of doubt but that he is deeply stirred and feels it a matter of personal and official honor on his part to see that speedy and unfaltering prosecution is obtained.

"The power of justice cannot long be delayed," he said.

"At the revelation of greed making its subtle approaches to public officers, of the prostitution of high place to private profit, we are filled with scorn and indignation. We have a deep sense of humiliation at such gross betrayal of trust and we lament the undermining of public confidence in official integrity. But we cannot rest with righteous wrath; still less can we permit ourselves to give way to cynicism. The heart of the American people is sound. Their officers with rare exception are faithful and high-minded. For us, we propose to follow the clear, open path of justice. There will be immediate, adequate and unshrinking prosecution, criminal and civil, to punish the guilty and to protect ever, national interest.

"In this effort there will be no politics, no partisanship. It will be speedy, it will be just. I am a republican but I cannot, on that account, shield anyone because he is a republican. I am a republican, but I cannot on that account prosecute anyone because he is a democrat."

Fair Dealing Urged.

Then the president asked for cool and fair-minded dealing on the part of the country.

"I want no hue and cry, no mingling of innocent and guilty in un-

Huerta Deposed As Rebel Chief For His Flight

El Paso, Texas, February 12.—Consul General E. D. Ruiz announced Tuesday that rebel documents seized indicate that Adolfo de la Huerta has been deposed as supreme chief of the revolutionists.

A conference of rebel chieftains has decided to place General Canido Aguilar at the helm of the rebels. Participating in the conference were Generals Guadalupe Sanchez, Fortuna Mayotte and Cesar Castro.

The document, addressed to Adolfo de la Huerta and signed by the three rebel generals, notified the "supreme chief" that the decision had been arrived at after due deliberation.

A document from De la Huerta, addressed to the three generals, protested their action.

"I did not expect an imposition so rude and unjust on your part," De la Huerta replied, urging the generals to reconsider their action.

It is now generally believed that the flight of De la Huerta from Vera Cruz was the immediate cause of the three generals' actions.

Yaqul, who was captured Canillo, headquarters of Hipolito Villa and General Chao, and rebel troops have been forced to retreat.

May Surrender Warships.

Vera Cruz, February 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Negotiations for the surrender of the rebel warships lying off Vera Cruz harbor are being carried on between the commanders and General Francisco Serrano, directing the federal operations, according to official quarters.

The vessels comprise the gunboat Zaragosa, the converted merchantman Jamulinas and the submarine chaser Covarrubias.

Referendum Plan Meets Approval Of Office-Seekers

Various candidates for county offices in the forthcoming election are in the city, Tuesday, expressed approval of the referendum on the fee system which was authorized Monday by the Fulton county democratic committee.

Miss Bessie Kempton and J. O. Wood, two Fulton representatives in the legislature, declared their opposition to no statement. His ally, Y. Smith, the third member, was out of the city.

Sheriff Lowry said he was delighted that the people will be given an opportunity to express themselves on this important issue.

Chief Beavers, who is opposing Sheriff Lowry, will not even attempt to state his position. His candidacy, however, is based on an anti-fee platform, it is stated.

Charles W. Wilkins, candidate for county commissioner, said:

"I see no particular reason for any one running for the board to discuss the fee system. The system has always been wrong, in my opinion, and it will be wrong. The salary always will be wrong. The salary" question ought to be decided in accordance with the welfare of the whole country.

The president added that the service rendered in the war could not be recompensed with money and that "the American soldier did not enter the service for the purpose of securing personal gain."

Praises Denby Action.

Senator Wadsworth, of New York, speaking just before the president, raised a storm of applause when he congratulated Coolidge on his refusal to heed the senate's demand for Secretary Denby's resignation.

"A very simple proposition was uttered by the president last night," said the senator.

"When, in language we could all understand, he stated the proper functions of the executive and the senate, he did a great public service and stated a great truth."

Shouts of approval mingled with the roar of applause as Wadsworth finished.

President Coolidge stood silently while the "Star Spangled Banner" was being played; later he smiled and nodded in recognition of the applause from the guests. A man in the gallery shouted, "three cheers for President Coolidge."

The president leisurely adjusted his horn-rimmed glasses and in a low, but firm, voice began the address which will shape his immediate political future.

Follows Manuscript.

He followed his manuscript closely, looking up from time to time. Scarcely a gesture marked his delivery.

Opening his address with a brief eulogy of Lincoln, the president launched into a discussion of current political questions, writing his platform for the coming campaign with the same firm, bold hand which marked his first message to congress.

He cautioned his city listeners that the welfare of the farmer is a problem affecting the whole country. Co-operative marketing, increased tariff rates on wheat, government loans, and such aids will help, he said.

European Situation.

Touching briefly on the European situation, he predicted good would come of the reparations investigation in which the American business men are cooperating. Export of surplus American capital ought, in his opinion, to be encouraged.

Taking the note of recent suggestions for another disarmament conference, the president said the present time does not appear propitious for further limitation, but should a European settlement be effected, then something may be hoped for.

"The United States stands ready to join with the other great powers, whenever there appears to be reasonable prospect of agreement, in a further limitation of competitive armaments," said Mr. Coolidge.

Sale of arms to the Oregon government was defended in language almost identical with that recently emanating from the state department. To refuse the arms would have been equivalent to deciding that a friendly government should not be permitted to protect itself, Coolidge argued.

"I did what I thought was necessary to discharge the moral obligation of one friendly government to another. While I trust no further action may be necessary I shall continue to afford protection in accordance with the requirements of international law," he added, by way of a fling at his critics in congress.

Makes Oats the Quickest Breakfast

Your grocer now has 2 styles of Quaker Oats—QUICK QUAKER and regular Quaker Oats, the kind you've always known.

For a hot breakfast quick, ask for QUICK QUAKER.

Cooks in half the time of coffee—scarcely longer than simple toasted bread. Same plump oats as regular Quaker Oats. But cut before flaking, rolled very thin and partly cooked—smaller flakes that cook faster, that's the only difference.

All that rare Quaker flavor. All the joy of hot breakfasts without bother or delay.

WOMEN ESCAPE BACK POLL TAX

In response to an inquiry from Judge James B. Park, of Ocmulgee circuit, Attorney General George M. Napier Tuesday issued a statement in which he holds that Georgia women who have not previously registered, may register and vote in the county primaries and the preferential presidential primary on March 19, without paying poll tax for either 1922 or 1923.

Judge Park, in his letter seeking an opinion on this point, declares the act of the state legislature at the special session in the fall of 1923 changing registration rules for women voters has caused considerable confusion throughout the state.

New Registrants Exempt.

In his reply, the attorney general quotes extracts from Judge Park's letter and also the latest amendments to the registration law. He then says: "My conclusion is, that a woman who has not heretofore registered to votes, can now register for any approaching election without paying any poll tax for either 1922 or 1923, and the law allows her until December to pay her poll tax for the current year.

"A woman would need to pay ad valorem taxes accruing prior to January 1, 1923, just as men are required to pay such taxes.

"And if a woman had registered to vote for the year 1922 or the year 1923, she would need pay her poll taxes for that year or years in which she registered to vote. She could not legally vote this year without paying such taxes.

"However, she can register off as a voter and be relieved of the taxes but she would then be a non-voter.

Poll Tax Obligation.

"It may be possible that the provision that women can register off and avoid the payment of taxes is an unconstitutional provision, as you suggest, because of the lack of uniformity in its operation; but, inasmuch as the law says these women may be relieved of payment of poll tax who have heretofore registered for voting, the opportunity is uniform as to women; and blind persons and others are exempted. This exemption will not be allowed, apparently, to those women who register for voting hereafter. In other words, it would seem that this privilege is to be exhausted upon such women as have heretofore registered for voting who should now wish to register off and thus avoid the payment of poll tax.

"As I see it, the payment of poll taxes by all citizens who are allowed the exercise of the elective franchise,

MEMORIAL SCHOOL ACCEPTED TUESDAY BY GOV. WALKER

In a proclamation issued Tuesday Governor Clifford Walker accepted, on behalf of the state, the proposed new college for boys which is to be established at Valdosta. He also called on the people of the state to recognize the institution as a Woodrow Wilson memorial.

"I call on all people of the state to recognize this as the Woodrow Wilson memorial and to cooperate to the extent of their ability in giving the memorial the fullest significance and to assist in making it not only a fitting memorial, but an institution of the greatest possible benefit to the state and her citizens."

MAY ERECT TABLET TO HONOR MEMORY OF CHARLES DUPRE

A bronze memorial tablet commemorating the heroism of Charles W. DuPre, who was burned to death Sunday as he worked to save other occupants of his residence from the flames, was proposed Tuesday by S. E. Davidson, J. W. Harris, J. C. Crockett and Stiles Hopkins, widely known Atlantans.

Mrs. DuPre perished with her husband after he had hurled two other members of his household to safety through a window. His heroism in the face of death was highly commended by those suggesting the memorial.

Sore Throat

Although more powerful in the presence of saliva than pure Carbolic Acid, Zonite can be freely used as a gargle or throat spray at sufficient strength to destroy all disease germs with which it comes in contact.

The promptness with which Zonite relieves most throat affections has been a revelation to tens of thousands of users of this new form of antiseptic.

Georgia Editors Prepare For Mid-Winter Convention

The mid-winter convention of the Georgia Press association will begin Thursday in Cairo, Ga., with Charles D. Rountree, president, presiding. Vice President Ernest Camp, of Monroe; Vice President Emily Woodward, of the Vienna Progress; Recording Secretary Charles E. Binn, of the Butler Herald; Corresponding Secretary Hal Stanley, of the Georgia Publisher; and Treasurer J. J. Howell, of the Cuthbert Leader, have urged all members to send delegates to the meeting. More than 120 representatives of Georgia papers have signed reservations.

and many in the south Georgia territory are expected to attend. The summer session of the association will be held in Waycross in July. An excursion into the Okefenokee swamp is planned as a unique side trip.

To Visit Savannah. Savannah asked for the winter session which will meet at Cairo, and the entire party, through the invitation of a group of Savannah business men, will proceed to Savannah Saturday afternoon to a banquet there Saturday night. The program at Cairo for Thursday night, all day Friday and till noon Saturday is the most pretentious arranged for a winter convention. Judge H. C. Bell, Cairo, of the court of appeals, will formally welcome the news-folk, and F. D. Singleton, of Clarksville, will make the response. Dr. J. W. Daniel, of Savannah, of the Georgia Medical Society and the state wide health association for Georgia, will make the chief address. "Plans for the Statewide Health Association," Thursday.

Shop Talks Friday. Friday will be shop-talk day. The speakers are Miss Emily Woodward, Vienna; O. W. Rountree, Newnan; J. J. Rountree, Ocala; T. L. Bailey, Cochran; John Shannon, Commerce; Mrs. Ethel Thomas, LaGrange, and others. Saturday's program will include addresses on live topics. Royal Daniel, an Atlanta newspaper man, now of Quitman; Judge W. F. Jenkins, Quitman, will speak on "Corpuscles and Cosmos." Judge W. F. Jenkins, of the court of appeals, will speak on "The Value of the Press to the People Under Present Economic Conditions," and Clarence Poe, editor of The Progressive Farmer, Raleigh, N. C., will speak on "Vision." A special delegation from Savannah will visit Cairo to invite the association to meet in Savannah and accompany the party on a specially chartered train. Delegates will en-train for Savannah about noon. Eugene R. Black, of Atlanta, will be the Georgia speaker at a banquet that night. H. H. Small, president of the National Rivers and Harbors congress, and Major Gordon Young, of the Army Engineering corps, Washington, will also deliver addresses. Brief preliminaries and a response by John Paschal, of Atlanta, will feature the opening of the banquet. The visitors will be entertained at the DeSoto hotel Sunday.

M'ADOO IN HANDS OF STATE LEADERS

I will do anything they think is right and best for the service of the party and the country."

Wants "Progressives." The former secretary also asked that there be invited to the conference "representatives of progressives outside of the democratic party, representatives of labor, representatives of the farmers, and any other group think advisable, in order that we may get as far as possible a true index of public opinion."

McAdoo's Letter. Mr. McAdoo's letter, under date of today, follows:

"I want you to call a conference in Chicago as promptly as possible of the representative men and women leaders in each state of the so-called McAdoo movement. I want this conference to consider and determine whether or not the fact that an honest and capable man is being used by me for a client, but having no relation whatever to the oil leases now under investigation by the senate committee, is a reason for my resignation in the cause of progressive democracy."

"This has nothing whatever to do with the betrayal by ex-Secretary Fall of his public trust and the discovery and revelation of others who have betrayed the public interest or have been guilty of wrong doing in the oil scandal."

"What I am concerned about is not the fact that a man of life is of no consequence as compared with the cause of progressive democracy. That cause must be preserved and made victorious at any cost or individual institutions depends upon it. The appalling conditions prevailing in Washington today—corruption, graft, and the creation of a situation more dangerous to government than bolshevism itself. Those who have betrayed the public trust must be driven out and lashed with public contempt and indignation. Those who are fighting me with disreputable methods know that if I had the power I would scourge the traitors and faithless servants, drive them from every bureau and department of government and punish them, and all others guilty of wrong doing, to the utmost limit of the law."

Fought By Powerful Interests. "The powerful financial influences which I had to fight for six years while secretary of the treasury, and the powerful railroad officials who have tried false claims against the government, the bosses and other sinister influences determined to control government at any cost. They are arrayed against me because they fear to have a man in the presidency who will expose their methods and who can not be swayed from the path of duty and justice."

"The most immediate and vital issue before the American people is whether these sinister and dangerous forces shall control government or whether honest and clean government shall be restored to the people, administered in the interest of all the people and not prostituted to the service of the privileged and favored few."

Asks "Cold-Blooded" Action. "I want this conference to consider this situation. I want the progress men and women who attend to be cold-blooded about it. I want them to disregard my personal interests or political fortunes and to consider the relation well-considered and deliberate judgment, what is best for the cause of democracy and clean government—what is best for the future of the nation. If I think I am unavailable I shall gladly withdraw and fight as a private citizen in the ranks; if I think I should lead, I will do so with all the power that is in me. I will do anything that they think is right and best for the service of the party and the country."

"To this conference it would please me immensely if you would invite also representatives of progressives outside of the democratic party, representatives of labor, representatives of the farmers, and any others you think advisable in order that we may get as far as possible a true index of public opinion."

"We must all fight and sacrifice to the limit of human capacity the vicious and sinister combination of finance, transportation, bosses and graft, which has destroyed confidence in government and will destroy democracy itself unless it is whipped into oblivion."

Reaches Decision. Mr. McAdoo's decision to leave his political fate in the hands of the Chicago conference was reached after his voluntary appearance before the senate oil committee yesterday to give a full account of his employment by the Doheny companies, as counsel, in relation to Mexican oil matters.

In his statement to the committee he reiterated that his employment came long after he left the cabinet; that it had no relation whatever to the oil leases, and that in every way it was an entirely proper relationship and needed no explanation. Mr. McAdoo was heard by one of the largest crowds that has attended any session of the oil investigation, and he submitted himself fully to questioning by the committee.

As his examination was drawing to a close, Chairman Lenroot said he wanted to make it a matter of record before the committee that Mr. McAdoo's name had been drawn into the investigation by a line of questions which Senator Reed, of Missouri, himself a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, had demanded in the senate should be put to Mr. Doheny—whether he had paid any sums to any former officials after the government.

SCOTCH GENERALS MEET COL. FORBES

Regards to all. Sure my time? Leaving San Francisco, Forbes, Sweet and the Mortimers motored to Stockton, looked over a government rehabilitation project on picturesque Rough and Ready Island and ended up at a house where, according to Mortimer, there was a bar running the length of the room. A bartender, like a ghost of old years, was mixing drink—"anything you wanted." Here, Mortimer, Forbes and friends spent a whole afternoon. From Forbes' files in the veterans' bureau, the senate investigators extracted a carbon copy of a bread-and-butter letter to the owner of this hospitable house. Here it is, in part:

The Famous Letter.

Dear Mrs. "I believe I could astonish you, if I were to record in this letter the visualization of that never-to-be-forgotten room in your home, the name of which is a word obsolete if not obsolete. The best of Washington conjures up before me as in a mirage the innumerable things that greeted one's eyes and excited the palate of the third if I could but materialize these things, I assure you that Washington in its bravest of torrid days, would offer me no apprehensions of discomfort. Sincerely yours, (Typed) CHARLES E. FORBES.

Forbes, on the stand, said that he could not remember writing such a letter; that Sweet, his secretary, usually attended to social correspondence. And Sweet also did not seem to remember.

Following Mortimer's testimony, on this trivial but interesting point of alcoholic stimulant; there had been some question concerning the disposal of the grape crop on the old Cresta Blanca vineyard, now growing famous as the Livermore hospital site. It seemed a pity to lose those grapes. "Don't you worry," said Forbes to Mortimer, "we'll get the wine where we want there, anyway." Here is Mortimer's testimony, in spots and flashes:

In Monday there were a couple of dozen quarts of it (wine) brought up to the hotel in San Francisco in two suit cases. The drinking started about an hour after we came to the hotel. The majority of people were drinking Scotch in fact, hardly any of the wine was touched. It was taken in the automobiles in Stockton when we went there.

Major General O'Ryan: There were liberal quantities of Scotch available, were there?

Mr. Mortimer: Yes, sir.

From Stockton to Los Angeles and San Diego, they proceeded by automobile, doing a little government business here and there. At San Francisco, the committee of the American Legion United Colonies Forbes to protest against the irregularities in the Livermore hospital transaction. "The time of that affair were just beginning to leak out," Colonel Forbes gave them only languid attention. By the time he came to testify before the senate committee he had forgotten their protest entirely. At Stockton he was dined by the board of trade; southern California welcomed him with open-handed hospitality.

Washington All Set. At San Diego, the party took a Pacific coast steamer for Seattle. The state of Washington was all wired for their coming. Colonel Forbes, an adopted son of the green northwest, was returning as a power in our government. H. F. Alexander, owner of a steamship line on the Pacific coast, caught the party by telephone, invited them to transfer at San Francisco to his new steamer deluxe, the Alexander. Forbes accepted; they traveled north in Mr. Alexander's private suite. A public luncheon celebrated the arrival of the Alexander.

All the way west, Colonel Forbes had been revealing a power hitherto unsuspected by his friends. He proved a magnificent rough-and-ready orator. "He could stand up before a thousand people and make 'em laugh and cry as he wanted," says Mortimer. At this luncheon, the artistic temperament took possession of Colonel Forbes and led him into indiscretions. At the end of a long passage in praise of Mr. Alexander, he drew from his pocket one of the common little Harling medals which were hawked about the streets of Washington at the time of the inauguration and pinned it on his host. "The president, before I left Washington, asked me to give this to you!" he said. Following is Mortimer's testimony:

I asked Forbes—we were all sitting around laughing, and I said, "Charlie, tell me, did the president ask you to reward that?" And he said, "no," he said, "I said, 'he was pretty good to me and put in his private suite on the boat.' It was an impulsive thing on the spur of the moment. . . . But he is very spontaneous."

In the northwest, Mr. Mortimer, Thompson and Black's agents for contracts with the government, began getting down to business. Let me dispense with the monotonous phrase "according to Mortimer's testimony."

To the end of this installment the rest is all taken from his examination before the senate committee, as confirmed in spots by other witnesses or by letters, telegrams and documents. Forbes has declared that Mortimer's story is untrue in bulk and in detail.

Forbes' Stock Disappears. C. B. Hurley had come, as requested, to San Francisco. In the presence of Mortimer, he and Forbes spoke of the proposed government hospital at American Lake, Wash., one of the projects which had drawn Forbes west. Forbes had said to Hurley, "I cannot give you any work because . . . I still own stock in your company." They held several private conversations. Then Hurley came out of a conference and said to Mortimer, "Forbes has no stock in your company and we are in a position to figure on the work." Hurley was awaiting the party at Tacoma; J. W. Black, of the Thompson-Black combination, one of Mortimer's employers in the business of getting government contracts, already was in the northwest.

From that time forth, the business atmosphere thickens. Hurley called Mortimer into his office and imparted to him a simple and useful code for communication regarding government contracts. The key was a standard pocket dictionary. To get the code word, you counted back five words from the word you wanted to express. "Man," for example, became in the code "mamilla," "arrive" became "array" and "August" became "auditorium." This of course did not cover proper names. There was therefore a typewritten supplementary list, disguising the names of persons and cities. "The chief" (Forbes) was "McAdoo"; Sweet was "Pickles"; O'Brien, "Fox"; Mortimer, "Moxey," and Hurley, "Hyder." The device of naming Forbes after a democratic leader gave the little circle many a good laugh. Mortimer submitted to the senate committee several telegrams and letters in this code all referring to government contracts.

Forbes declared to the senate committee that he had no knowledge of this code and it is to be noted that none of the letters or telegrams submitted are addressed to him or signed by him. Mortimer testified to the contrary.

Mr. Mortimer: I know that he was supposed to have one. (Copy of the code.) I know that everybody else had one, and he knew about it.

The Chairman: How do you know he knew about it?

Mr. Mortimer: Because he asked me if there was something wrong with one of the messages that he evidently got. I got several code messages at the Washington Park and he asked me what the meaning of it was. He was a little mixed up, I guess, in trying to go back and find what the words were and decipher them.

The party had enjoyed the hospitality of Tacoma, Seattle, Portland, Spokane, before the backstairs negotiators came down to the heart of the business. While recreating themselves at Hayden Lake near Spokane, Hurley, Forbes and Mortimer took a little walk and talked things over. The bureau was going to build three hospitals in the region of Hurley's business operations—at American Lake, Wash., Livermore, Cal., and St. Cloud, Minn. San Diego, also, was a possibility. Direct testimony again:

Mr. Mortimer: The direct conversation out at Hayden Lake, which was brought up by Mr. Hurley in Forbes' presence and my presence, was that by linking together or the borrowing of money from the Thompson-Black combination to finance any deal that would be necessary . . . they were to share 33 1/2 per cent without taking any of the work, just in on Livermore or American Lake, St. Cloud, Minn., or any contract that they would get.

Major General O'Ryan: That was for staying out of Hurley's territory?

Mr. Mortimer: Yes.

Colonel Forbes, director of the Veterans' bureau, was to get a third of these profits, leaving a third to Hurley. Mortimer had already been promised 35 per cent of the profits on any hospital contracts which he might land for the Thompson-Black company. And he "was to be taken care of out of the Thompson-Black 33 1/2 per cent." The testimony continues: (Fourth Installment Tomorrow.)

When your customer talks about you does he say the right things?

"THE best advertising we get comes from our pleased customers," says many a business man.

That is the best kind of advertising—but what do these customers say?

Do they talk about the points you would like to have them talk about? Are they specific? Or do they really know why they are satisfied with what you give them.

Advertise a little to your customers. Tell them why they are doing the right thing to buy from you. Send them at regular intervals a printed booklet or folder or house organ that will give them a chance to know your story as you know it—to tell your story the way you want to have it told.

Your customers want to brag about your service. They want to feel sure they are doing exactly the right thing by dealing with you. Give them this information. See that everybody in their company knows—not just the man you sell to.

When you send this kind of direct advertising to customers, you are writing your own word-of-mouth advertisement.

See to it that when your customer mentions your name, he sows exactly the kind of selling seed you want him to sow. Furnish him the seed. Put him on your mailing list and then be sure that the mailings you send are well done and plentiful.

If you don't know how to do it, it's easy to find out. Talk to one of the printers who specialize in this kind of work—fine direct-by-mail advertising.

Better paper and better printing never fail the man who seriously tries to get the most out of them.

GEORGIA DAY OBSERVED IN ATLANTA SCHOOLS

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Tuesday was Georgia day. All day yesterday, in the public schools of the city, the children had their attention directed to historical data clustering around General James Oglethorpe, founder of the state.

However, Tuesday also was the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln.

February 12 was designated as Georgia day several years ago, by the Georgia legislature. It was supposed to be the date on which Oglethorpe landed at Savannah.

Oglethorpe really didn't land at Savannah. He landed at a point on the coast close to Brunswick, and St. Simon's island.

It is not known to this writer at least, just what date he landed. Perhaps President Thornwell Jacobs or some of his faculty at Oglethorpe university can definitely decide the correct date.

There is given in one of the leading histories of those times a copy of a letter written by Oglethorpe, dated from Savannah, February 10, 1733, in which he says that the British Empire, of which Georgia was a colony, used the Julian calendar at the time Oglethorpe came of Georgia. They did not change to the Gregorian calendar until 1752, about 20 years later.

The change in calendars would involve about a 14-day change in dates. Thus, if Oglethorpe landed on, say, February 10 by the calendar of that day, it would correspond to approximately February 24 of our method of reckoning.

WIFE OF GOVERNOR SPEAKS AT AD CLUB

Mrs. Clifford Walker, wife of Georgia's governor, will be the principal speaker Thursday at the Ad club luncheon.

In observance of St. Valentine's day the program has been turned over to women members of the club. Mrs. Walker will speak on "The Educational Value of Advertising."

DIVISION MAIL HEAD TO SPEAK HERE TODAY

E. F. Chilton, of Nashville, Tenn., division president of the Railway Mail association, will reach Atlanta this afternoon on his way home from Washington, D. C. While in the city Mr. Chilton will address a meeting of the local branch of the Railway Mail association at the Ansley hotel at 8 o'clock tonight.

Colonel W.L. Peel Named Director Of Atlanta Bank

Colonel William Lawson Peel has been elected to the board of directors of the Citizens & Southern bank, according to announcement Tuesday.

Colonel Peel is one of the leading citizens of Atlanta and among the best known business men of the city. Colonel Peel is actively engaged in many important civic affairs and for many years has been chairman of the board of directors of the Atlanta Music Festival association. He is probably due a greater share of credit than any other individual for the annual Metropolitan opera week in Atlanta. During the world war he was manager of the southern division of the Red Cross. He is a member of the Kiwanis club, chairman of the board of trustees of the Georgia Military academy and Young Harris college and is chairman of the bond sinking fund commission of Atlanta, a post he has held since the commission's organization.

Colonel Peel was actively engaged in the banking business in Georgia for 45 years. He started in 1871 as bookkeeper and assistant cashier of the Bank of America, Ga. As cashier of the Bank of the State of Georgia, or pioneer financial institution of this city, he came to Atlanta in 1876. He organized the private banking house of Maddox, Rickor & Co. in 1880, and served it as cashier, vice president and president until it was merged with the American National bank in 1908. He was president of the consolidated bank until 1916, when it was merged with the Atlanta National bank, at which time he retired from active business.

OLD COLONY CLUB NAMES ATLANTA AS HEADQUARTERS

Atlanta has been designated as headquarters for the southeastern district of the "Old Colony club," it was announced Tuesday. This is described as a worldwide organization for men of broad vision and recognized standing and its objects are declared to be covered in the word "service." The club has thirty-seven bureaus in various parts of the world and its services are divided into different types, one to relieve the business and professional men of travel inconvenience, and another to save time and trouble for travelers by furnishing information and solving problems which may arise.

Headquarters of the club are in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York, and its membership is said to total over 25,000. A magazine, "The Old Colony Magazine," is published as the official organ, and bureaus in the different cities are in charge of managers. D. L. Brock will have charge of the southeastern district and offices and club rooms will be opened on the second floor of the Piedmont hotel, it is announced.

Judge Hill To Speak At Meet of Baraca And Philathea Union

Judge H. Warner Hill, of the supreme court of Georgia, one of the best known Bible teachers and religious leaders of the south, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Baraca and Philathea union, at 7:30 o'clock next Monday night at the Central Baptist church.

A musical program by Atlanta's best talent also will be given. The executive board of the Baraca and Philathea union voted unanimously to send to the state convention at Brunswick, Ga., May 21 to 23, at least 200 delegates from Atlanta and suburbs. A banquet for all classes of Baraca and Philatheas of the city will be held at a downtown hotel April 3.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is Calotabs, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nauseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds, coughs, sore throat and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the nauseless calomel tablets called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and colds and is one of the most important factors in enabling the attack and ward off pneumonia.

One or two Calotabs at bedtime, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Genuine Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents for the large, family package; ten cents for the small, vest-pocket size.—(adv.)

HOOD Brick ARE GOOD Brick

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of calomel powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calomel powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.—(adv.)

"I have just finished a treatment of your wonderful remedy and can say it has done wonders for me already. For the past five years I have been unable to eat any but the lightest food and that but sparingly, as my food caused me to bloat with gas. I was reduced to a skeleton of ninety pounds, and was on the road to the boneyard. A friend in Birmingham sent me a bottle of Mayer's Wonderful Remedy, which I took, and I am sure it will entirely cure me of my trouble, judging from what it brought from me and the way I feel." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allows the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Jacobs Pharmacy and druggists everywhere.—(adv.)

U. S. MONEY BILL BREAKS RECORDS

Washington, February 12.—The largest peace-time appropriation bill ever before congress—the annual treasury-postoffice supply bill, carrying approximately $729,000,000—was passed today by the house by a viva voce vote. The measure goes to the senate practically as drafted by the house appropriations committee, only a few amendments of importance having been adopted by the house.

One amendment, adopted at the last minute, increased the amount for maintenance of rural delivery service during the coming fiscal year from $88,250,000 to $89,250,000. The vote was 124 to 115.

Letter Carriers Profit. Previously the house had increased the $87,000,000 for pay of city letter carriers by $400,000 and had raised the amount for transmission of mail by pneumatic tubes in New York City approximately $70,000 or to a total of $326,372.

The chief change in the bill was the elimination of a section allotting $1,500,000 for maintenance of the New York-San Francisco airplane mail service. This provision was thrown out on a point of order by Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, who contended the service was unauthorized by law, and the house was seeking to grant it funds in an appropriation bill.

The point raised by Mr. Cramton, though short an effort, led by Representative Laguardia, republican, New York, and Clancy, democrat, Michigan, to increase the appropriation for airplane mail to $3,000,000. During debate Mr. Clancy charged that the railroads were seeking to have the appropriation knocked out all together.

$10,629,770 for Dry Law. Of the total carried in the bill, $610,000,000 is for the postoffice department, and $119,000,000 for the treasury. Included in the treasury allotment is $10,629,770 for prohibition enforcement, $10,652,000 for the coast guard, $13,574,000 for the customs service.

Disposal of the bill, the second supply measure to be sent to the senate this session, cleared the way for house consideration of the tax bill which will be taken up Thursday.

Sisters Who Fled Rome Church Taken In Atlanta Haven

Constitution Bureau.
Masonic Temple Annex.
Phone 1069.

Rome, Ga., February 12.—(Special.)—Misses Gertrude Shropshire and Mary Gilliam, two pretty North Rome girls, left their homes for Sunday school last Sunday morning and failed to return. The father of Miss Shropshire reported their absence to Mrs. Bessie Matland Lawrence, Floyd county probation officer, this morning and both girls were located in Atlanta, where a young man, who it is alleged, accompanied the girls from Rome to Atlanta, has also been located and will be brought back. He will be prosecuted if it is found he has violated any law in connection with the excursion, the parents declare.

Plan Economic Program.

Rome, Ga., February 12.—(Special.)—Miss Jessie Burton, Floyd county economics agent, is carrying on a progressive economics and domestic program throughout the county. Her program just put on at Fairview school house is illustrative of what is being done in every school community in the county.

Rites Held for Mrs. Felton.

Rome, Ga., February 12.—(Special.)—Mrs. L. B. H. Felton, 75, formerly of Rome, died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. V. Bidez, at Rockmart. Mrs. Felton was a charter member of the Woman's Missionary society of the Second Avenue Methodist church, and was well known here. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. R. V. Bidez, of Rockmart, and Mrs. I. T. O'Brien, of Rome. Funeral services will be held at the Second Avenue Methodist church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be at Silver Creek, Ga.

Collins Has Recovered.

Rome, Ga., February 12.—(Special.)—M. W. H. Collins, Floyd county demonstration agent, who was operated on for appendicitis while attending a state convention of county agents and other agricultural workers at Athens two weeks ago, has recovered and returned to Rome.

Booth To Speak.

Rome, Ga., February 12.—(Special.)—Commander Evangeline Booth, of the Salvation Army of America, will deliver an address in Rome, March 11. This will be Commander Booth's only stop in Georgia and friends of the army and army officials from all over the state will come here. The Rome chamber of commerce has invited Governor Walker to preside at the meeting which Miss Booth will address. Ensign John Horzau, in charge of the Salvation Army work in Rome, formerly a member of the War Cee staff, is a personal friend of Commander Booth and it is largely in compliment to his past that she will visit Rome.

President Coolidge has ordered that money-making boxing bouts be abolished among service men in the army and navy.

Fifth Annual Auto Show Will Open Here Saturday

Embracing one of the most elaborate displays in the history of the south, the fifth annual southern automobile show will open in Atlanta Saturday, bringing to this city hundreds of car and accessory dealers and motorists. Preparations are fast being completed to entertain the immense exhibit at the auditorium.

Members of the Atlanta Automobile association will attend dinner on the roof of the Ansley hotel, Thursday night, for final discussion of plans prior to the opening of the show. C. A. Vane, general manager of the National Automobile Dealers' association, and other outstanding national figures in the automotive industry, will be heard in short addresses. The Atlanta association has consolidated its meeting this year with the big dealers' meeting, staged yearly by the Champion Spark Plug company.

PREMIER TO FOLLOW VENIZELLOS' POLICIES

Athens, February 12.—Announcing the new government's program at the reopening yesterday of the national assembly, Premier Kafandaris said the retirement of Venizelos was only temporary and the government was convinced that the people's wishes could only be met on the basis of the principles advocated by the retiring premier. M. Kafandaris contended that Greece's sufferings were largely due to the monarchical system. A radical change in regime was imperative, but such change must be made solely in accordance with the clearly expressed wishes of the people.

BLAIR TO CONSTRUCT MEMPHIS POSTOFFICE

Washington, February 12.—The treasury today awarded a contract for the construction of the first unit of a new postoffice building at Memphis, Tenn., to Alperon Blair, of Montgomery, Ala. The Blair bid was $99,831, being the lowest of nine proposals.

The plans call for the eventual expenditure of about $750,000, but under present laws only the first unit of the structure may now be erected. Architect's plans provided, however, for the first unit to serve as a base for the larger building which it is hoped may be completed within five years.

AIR MAIL BILL KILLED IN HOUSE ON POINT OF LAW

Washington, February 12.—A provision allotting $1,500,000 for maintenance of a New York-San Francisco airplane mail service facing the coming fiscal year was eliminated from the postoffice department appropriation bill today in the house on a point of order by Representative Cramton, republican, Michigan, who declared the service was unauthorized by law.

Report Unfavorable On Immigration Bill By Senator Harris

Washington, February 12.—An unfavorable report was ordered today by the senate immigration committee upon the resolution by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, proposing a five-year suspension of all immigration.

JAPAN WILL TRY TO MAKE PEACE WITH RUSSIANS

Tokio, February 12.—Addressing a conference of prefectural governors now in session here, Minister of Foreign Affairs K. Matsui today declared, "Japan will do her utmost to bring about early restoration of normal relations with Russia, despite the wide difference still existing between the views and policies of the two powers."

MACON LEGION POST OPPOSES WAR BONUS

Macon, Ga., February 12.—The Joe N. Jeff Smith May Fight Joe Lohman at Auditorium

Southern Athletic Club
May Come to Terms With Fighters During Today

BY HENRY ALLEN
From all indications, Atlanta fight fans will yet have a chance to see a real scrap here on March 7 if the plans of the Southern Athletic club materialize this time. In spite of all the obstacles that have been placed in the way of Holt Gwiner and Eric Nelson, matchmakers for the club, they believe that they now have a deal made and that the fight will go through.

Jeff Smith, of Bayonne, N. J., and Joe Lohman, of Toledo, is the match they have in mind, and from all indications this will go through.

Nelson was in receipt of a telegram last night from the manager of Smith stating his terms to fight Lohman here, and as they were very much in reason it is believed that the promoters can come to terms sometime today.

Although Lohman has not agreed to meet Smith, it is believed that he will consent to the match, as the promoters have been dickering with him since they decided to promote on March 7.

It is the plan of the promoters to have the winner meet Young Stribling during the summer after the open air season gets under way. Both Lohman and Smith have been wanting an opportunity to fight Stribling, and if the two are matched local fans will no doubt see a great battle.

Smith is not quite a stranger to local fans. He was matched to meet Harry Greb here last July in the show attempted by Dr. Provano, but Greb ran out and then Bob Roper was substituted. Numerous other difficulties arose which caused the affair to last and Smith returned east without the Atlanta fans having a chance to see him in action.

If this show goes through, the Southern Athletic club officials certainly deserve credit, for they have made many attempts to present a worthy card on March 7. Paul Berlenbach vs. Lohman was the first card suggested, but this fell through.

Lohman Accepted.
Lohman agreed to the match but with Berlenbach it was different. Nelson received a letter from the manager of the New York sensation yesterday morning stating that Berlenbach was listed for several fights in the near future and it would be impossible for him to appear here on that date. So that match went up in smoke.

Somewhat then suggested a Floyd Johnson-Lohman fight, but difficulties arose to prevent this fight. An effort was then made to match Lew Silver with some good local boy, but Max Abelson's protegee is booked up until after March 7.

Then somebody suggested Bob Roper, formerly of this city, and some good boy.

STRIBLING IS BACK FROM CINCY

Young Stribling, accompanied by his father-manager, returned to the city last night from Cincinnati, where the youngster fought Jack Schoendorf on Monday night. He will remain until this afternoon.

They will leave for Griffin where Stribling will take part in basketball game between the Young Stribling Athletic club five and some cage squad in that city. Stribling is forward and captain of the team. The Stribling outfit is made up of players from Macon, the former home of the youngster.

From Griffin, Stribling and his father will leave for Macon and then go on to Savannah where the youngster will meet Rough House Ross on Friday night. Ross is under the management of Duke Barry, a former Atlanta promoter who now receives his mail in Jacksonville.

The Striblings will return to Atlanta Saturday, where they will remain until about February 20, when they strike the road again, this time with Buffalo, N. Y., as their destination. Stribling will make his first appearance in New York state in that battle and will meet Joe Slatery.

After the Buffalo fight they will stop over in New York city for a few days and then return to Atlanta. Young Stribling will take a much needed rest during the month of March. The youngster has been on the go since his fight with Mike McGuire early last October and is showing signs of becoming stale.

A PIECE FOR THE PAPER

Baseball
By PAUL WARWICK

Wishes, fond wishes, disturbing the soul; murmurs, vague murmurs; stirring the air; whispers, sibilant whispers; caressing the senses; voices, calm voices, breaking the age-old stillness; arguments, friendly arguments, assailing the ears of man; in one paper an announcement, in another a schedule, here a contract, there a holdout; wishes intensified, murmurs confused, whispers coarsened, voices louder, arguments bitter, headlines bigger—and the whole shooting match snaps out of its process of evolution and is nothing less than a frantic, yelping, peanut-eatin', soda-pop-drinkin', pitcher-batlin', umpire-hatin' crowd at an opening game.

That's the way the baseball season has a habit of slipping upon us. A rough estimate would place us, at the present pecking, just past headlines and goin' on frantic. Things are warming up, as Shadrach said to Abednego that time. People are beginning to get downright anxious about how fast the new stand across the way from Mr. Spiller's swimming pool is getting along, about when Bert Niehoff will report, and how, and various details of a kindred nature.

Everybody is pretty much exercised about what kind of team Atlanta is going to have here on the fifteen Saturday afternoons and are exhibiting a great deal of confidence in Jack Corbett's determination and ability to sling forth a pennant-winner for summer display—but there are a whole lot of people who have baseball interests that come closer home. Meaning none other than the hundreds of young athletes who play amateur ball in any one of the several leagues that get in so much activity—and under such adverse circumstances—during the warmer weeks.

It seems as if there will be more than 100 amateur and semi-pro baseball teams operating in and out of Atlanta this summer—if the obvious activity of organization keeps up its present pace. The great success with which the amateur leagues functioned last year assures participation by practically every team last year active—and new teams are being organized in bunches. In fact, brand new leagues are in the process of formation at present.

Two new fraternal leagues are definitely under way, and with the host of other leagues, including the Press league, the Manufacturers' league, the three Sunday school leagues, the Suburban league, in all probability the Spalding and Perrin leagues, the mighty strong City league, as well as a flock of independent clubs—all this augurs for some healthy playing and some more hope for the big league magnates of the future, who have learned to set much store by the product of the sand-lots.

There is just one dismal feature—the recurrence of the old, old scramble for diamonds. It was true last year—scrap, scrap, always, for a place on which to play. And probably will be true again, unless those leading the amateur movement get busy and prevail on the City Fathers, or somebody, to loosen up and open up more vacant spaces. It ought to be done.

PERFORMANCE OF WOMEN IMPROVED

BY WALTER CAMP.
New York, February 12.—The wholesale smothering of swimming records that has taken place in the southern carnival emphasizes the fact that there is no department of sport in which women have developed more rapidly than in the water sport.

From a psychological standpoint, all students of the development of the race should find this increasing skill and speed of our neermaids with the greatest enthusiasm, for swimming answers the most question of athletics for women as does no other sport.

At the Olympic conference in Paris in 1914, in the midst of a heated debate as to the entrance of women athletes in international sport events, one of the French delegates took the floor and brought down the house with the assertion: "We do not want our women muscular. We want them beautiful."

There are unquestionably certain athletic sports which do tend to make women devotees less attractive. But that is not the case with swimming. Indeed that sport tends to develop all the elements of exercise needed to increase the beauty and attractiveness of its followers.

Buford for the Defeated, Roane and Matheson Star; Final Calculation, 34-26

BY R. ENOCH WHITE.

Displaying a beautiful passing attack in the closing moments of play Georgia Tech's basketball team won a fast and exciting game from the local Y. M. C. A. five last night on the Y court by a 34-to-26 score, before a small gathering of basketball fans.

With "Katy" Matheson in the hole to do the shooting, and Cliff King and Fred Moore at the other end of the court doing the passing Tech easily ran away from a tie score with the "Y" five in the final moments of play.

Both teams guarded well all during the game, especially in the first half when only 11 field goals were scored, 5 by the Y and 6 by Tech, but the guards were outplayed in the second half and that accounted for the large number of field goals.

Captain Buford, of the "Y," was the leading scorer of the game with 11 points to his credit. He was closely followed by Law with 8 points. Both the "Y" forwards were held to one field goal apiece by the Jackets guards.

Matheson with four field goals in rapid succession and one foul goal in the first half led the scoring for the Jackets with 9 points. King was next with 7 points while Captain Roane scored 6 points.

That Toledo fight out of the way, I took up the matter of promotion as a profession. For a long time I had my mind on Madison Square Garden. I knew that New York was the largest fighting center of the country.

In the meantime the Walker law had been passed in New York, which permitted fights to a finish and a referee authorized to give decisions within close range of the Jackets and when the first half ended Tech was on the long end of a 14 to 13 score.

In the second half the grudge battle was beginning to show itself more and more, and it was apparent that a spurt on the part of either team

Want Moran To Meet Mendelsohn

Milwaukee, Wis., February 12.—Efforts are being made to bring Pal Moran, New Orleans lightweight, who was recently defeated by Johnny Dundee here for a match with Johnny Mendelsohn, local lightweight. The proposed match is tentatively dated for February 28.

Moran and Mendelsohn met here early in season and the local boy lost a newspaper decision. Since that time the promoters have made several attempts to rematch the pair, but difficulties have always arisen which have prevented the bout.

If Mendelsohn wins his start against Joe Tipton in the semi-windup of the card for next Monday, which brings Lew Tendler and Pinky Mitchell together in the feature event, promoters believe they will have little difficulty in signing Moran.

WILLARD WANTED REVENGE AFTER DEFEAT BY DEMPSEY

BY TEX RICKARD
When we had checked up on the famous Toledo fight between Willard and Dempsey and while the country was still talking about the new champion, I found that I had made about $50,000 despite the small attendance. That is not much when you consider the immense amount of money I had at stake, or rather that I had invested. I had paid out $120,000 for the arena and had paid the fighters $127,500. The expense on top of that was enormous.

We took in $452,000. When everything had been paid my profits were very close to $50,000. This would show that I had at stake about $400,000. For an affair of that kind a promoter expects to make more than 25 per cent, or it wouldn't be worth the risk. You will see, though, that my profits were in the neighborhood of 12 per cent.

Jess Willard knew very well the stories going around about his having quit. He never said a word, though. The terrible beating he received and the unjust cries of quitting that went around the sporting circles completely unnerved him. He stayed away from reporters and went into seclusion. He wanted only the company of his family.

I know that Willard suffered much more humiliation than the public ever understood. In his seclusion he longed for a chance to get back at Dempsey, not so much to regain the championship as to wipe out the sting of the former defeat. He never liked the fight game and candidly said so.

After a long rest Willard quietly went into training with the idea of making Dempsey suffer the same humiliation that he had suffered. He advised with his friends. All of them were against his going through with such a plan. Even that didn't stop him.

Willard Wanted Revenge.
He came east to see me. Late in 1923, I believe it was, he met me in New York. I knew then just how much to heart he had taken that defeat. He wanted revenge.

I took the matter up with Dempsey and Kearns. There was considerable talk and dickering, but the upshot was a belief that the public would not be interested in a return contest. This hurt Willard very much. He felt it was then that he returned west, saying that he was through with the fight business forever. He did essay another comeback last year, but at the time of his former determination he was sincere.

Here is what he wrote in a letter to an intimate friend. It will give a clearer idea of his mental workings and ought to do away with that talk about his not being game:

"Until a few months ago I had a notion I would be given a chance to meet Dempsey in a return bout and convince my supporters that I could repay Jack for the manner in which he treated me in Toledo, but now I'm through for good.

"I really had a sincere desire to re-enter the ring, not for the purpose of regaining the championship, for I honestly believe I couldn't do that, nor do I believe there is a living fighter in today's crop of heavies who could turn the trick, but for the purpose of giving Dempsey severe punishment, making the champion take a little of the humiliation and drubbing I was forced to take that sun-baked day in Toledo.

"Dempsey Is Some Fighter."
"You know, I was in the ring there chuck full of confidence and was getting squared away, when with one leap, before I could realize that the fight was on, Dempsey crashed his powerful fist against my jaw and I was flat on my back. I was down before I ever got started, and that was something new in the way of experience for me. I was simply dumfounded, didn't know what had happened. I never saw anything like that before.

"That Dempsey is some fighter; don't let anybody kid you. He sunk his fist three inches into my belly. It burned into my stomach. And still there are some who say I quit.

"Well, there is one thing and only one I wanted very badly, and that was to get another crack at Jack. But even that is gone. I'd know better next time. He couldn't work that hurry-up gag on me again. All I wanted to do was hand him some of the same stuff he handed me. I feel confident I could do that, because I feel that now I'm stronger and much bigger. I feel that if ever we met again I would knock that guy's block off or he'd knock mine off, and that before he did that he would take a lot out of the ring with him that he wasn't looking for. Yes, he could have something to remember me by and know how I felt after that Toledo affair."

Willard stayed away from fights for a long time. When he came back in 1923 I am sure that he still had that spirit of revenge, that he still smarted under the former talk of having been a quitter. But the time had passed. He could not do it. He did lick that fellow up at the Yank stadium on the day of the Milk Fund fight, but when

REED SUPPORTERS TO HEAR CANDIDATE

In a statement issued Tuesday by supporters of U. S. Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, for the Georgia delegation's vote for the democratic presidential nomination, it is announced that Senator Reed will visit Georgia during the week of February 24, and will speak on the issues in the presidential race at a number of points in the state.

Reference is made, in the statement, to the withdrawal of William G. McRae, from the list of Reed supporters, as carried in a statement given to The Constitution by Mr. McRae Monday night. Reed supporters, referring to Senator Reed's position in regard to the Ku Klux Klan, which was given as the reason for Mr. McRae's withdrawal, assert that they "desire to say that Senator Reed's position on the Klan and all other questions involving American principles and ideals, is one that need give no offense to any supporter of these principles and ideals." Mr. McRae charged Senator Reed with opposing the Klan in recent speeches and during his campaign in Missouri in 1922.

Dates Not Decided.

The full statement issued Tuesday follows:

"Senator Reed will speak to the people of Georgia on the issues involved in the presidential race the week beginning February 24. Places at which he will address the people have not yet been determined upon but will be announced by his friends in time to give opportunity to assemble, and where a speaking date is advertised for Senator Reed, it is certain that the people will gather to hear him. He is one of the most fearless, eloquent, convincing and powerful orators known to American history.

"In view of the statement given the press by Mr. McRae, we desire to say that Senator Reed's position on the Klan and all other questions involving American principles and ideals, is one that need give no offense to any supporter of these principles and ideals. If Mr. McRae had asked Senator Reed's permission to publish his telegram in connection with the statement made by him, we are quite sure this would have been made perfectly clear. We have no criticism, however, to make in regard to his failure to do so. This may not have occurred to him.

To Open Headquarters.

"As to that part of the printed reference to the statement that Mr. McRae was to be officially connected with the Reed campaign headquarters, in order to be perfectly fair, it should be said, that Senator Reed's friends have not yet organized a state campaign committee, but will agree upon this organization within the next few days after which headquarters will be opened at the Kimball house.

"In an informal meeting of a few of Senator Reed's friends some days ago, the question of opening headquarters at the Kimball house was under discussion and Mr. McRae volunteered to help in the campaign after closing hours of his office, and we understand from James H. Byrd, that Mr. McRae likewise volunteered to sign the address which Mr. Reed's friends sent out February 2.

Friends Optimistic.

Mail coming in from all sections of the state in behalf of Senator Reed's candidacy indicates a sweeping Reed majority in the primary March 19. This opinion is based on news coming from outlying counties of the state that Senator Reed is very strong in the small towns and rural sections, and the further reason that the farmers of Georgia are against the League of Nations, in addition to a great many business men and laboring men of the towns and cities.

"The League of Nations and the oil crimes will be the leading issues in the next presidential contest. Senator Reed is against the League of Nations, and he is not without small oil of the oil."

CONVICTED WOMAN BEGINS SENTENCE AT STATE FARM

Mrs. Ollie Combs Justice, convicted of the murder several months ago of her sweetheart, DeWitt Turner, Tuesday was transferred from Fulton tower to the state farm at Milledgeville to serve a life sentence.

Turner was shot to death by the young woman as they were riding together on South Pryor street. Her first explanation was that she killed him because she "loved him." During her trial she declared she took his life to protect the honor of her younger sister, to whom he was alleged to have been attentive.

Mather Brothers' Furniture Exhibit Pleases Star Actor

Raymond Hitchcock, who is appearing this week at the Atlanta theater in "The Old Maid," spent some time Tuesday afternoon going through Mather Brothers' furniture exhibition building.

"You have a good furniture as there is in the world," said he, "and I'm really surprised to see how low the prices are, compared with what I have seen in eastern and northern cities," the actor said.

During his tour of the big building, accompanied by R. S. Mather and J. I. Mather, old friends of the famous actor, he was profuse in his congratulations on Atlanta having such a comprehensive display of fine furniture. He was delighted with a beautiful Venetian bedroom suite which he declared decidedly out of the ordinary.

Mr. Hitchcock was the guest at noon of R. S. Mather at the Lions' club luncheon and later was taken by J. I. Mather to view the work of his close friend, Gutzon Borglum, at Stone Mountain. Mr. Hitchcock was enthusiastic in his praise of the work already accomplished there.

PIONEER WOMAN DIES AT ATLANTA HOME

Mrs. Mary J. Lee, aged 69, a resident of Atlanta for 34 years, died yesterday at her home, 180 Murphy avenue. She is survived by one son, Chris R. Penn, of Atlanta; one sister, Mrs. Ella Saffold, of Barnesville, and two brothers, John Penn, of Hubbard City, Texas, and Will Penn, of Thompson, Ga. Mrs. Lee was a member of the First Christian church. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by H. M. Patterson & Son, funeral directors in charge.

SCHOOL PROGRAM FATE IN BALANCE

Fate of the Sutton school program was still in doubt Tuesday afternoon when the board of education recessed until Friday afternoon before taking final action on the progressive budget which was submitted without recommendation by the finance committee, but with the personal support of Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, President John T. Hancock and W. W. Gaines. Mr. Gaines was president of the board last year and is chairman of the temporary finance committee which prepared the budget.

The vote to recess was 7 to 6. The budget, it was stated by its advocates, would insure a deficit of $103,832.24 at the end of the year, even without making any provision for the $208,000 worth of work on the new Girls' high school for which the board holds options on unsigned contracts. The budget totals, $3,031,015.96, including the deficit carried over from last year.

An submitting the budget, Chairman Gaines declared that it would mean "that the public schools would have to shut their doors in September unless more revenues are provided from some new source" in addition to the $2,400,000 set aside for school and from other school sources of support.

Two Plans Open.

The board, it appeared from comments by the members of the budget, was nearly equally divided between the two courses open: To reduce the program to make its cost within anticipated revenues, or to carry on the progressive program until funds are exhausted and then close the schools unless more funds are provided.

Chairman Gaines declared himself opposed to continuing schools after the treasury becomes exhausted, and his attitude was supported by other advocates of the progressive program. The vote to defer final action did not indicate the attitude of members toward provisions of the budget, as several who have been considered conservative voted against deferring and several who have been considered progressive voted to defer.

Criticism of the school program voiced by Dr. Morris, one of the conservative members, was answered by Superintendent Sutton in an eloquent review of the purposes of education and the reason for all the studies Dr. Morris called "frills and furbelows." This included domestic science, botanical studies, and the amount of money expended for janitor service and for various items of operating costs.

The board adopted the change in rules proposed by Commissioner Kate Hess to abolish all standing committees. Under the new rule the board will transact all business as a committee of the whole. The change was voted unanimously, several members expressing the view that committee recommendations had not been given any consideration by the full board anyway.

Mr. Gaines supported the change on the ground that "no one member should be permitted to loom as a more important member of the board than any other." He said that in the past certain members had come to be considered more important than others.

Limits Expenditures.

The board adopted tentatively a resolution of the finance committee forbidding expenditures of more than two-thirds of any appropriation before September 1. This limitation, it was stated, was aimed to keep any sub-department from exhausting its appropriation early in the year. The limitation, it was stated, probably will be amended at the meeting Friday.

The board elected Mrs. J. H. Childress, fifth ward, and Mrs. El. Pierce, ninth ward, as members of the board of visitors for this year, on nominations of Rev. Jack Penn, fifth ward, and A. C. Meixell, ninth ward.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. F. C. BETHUNE

Funeral services for Mrs. Florrie Carr Bethune, whose death occurred early Tuesday morning at her home in Milledgeville, will be held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence.

Mrs. Bethune was 70 years of age and had been in ill health for some time. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, and up to a few years ago, had taken active interest in all of its affairs.

Mrs. Bethune was the widow of the late William Lewis. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Mamie Bethune Pitts, of Milledgeville; two sons, Bee T. Bethune, of Macon, and George Royal Bethune, well known young Atlanta business man, and one brother, W. A. Carr, of Cairo, Ga.

A Check for $2,000

The minister had cheered the woman as best he could—and said good-bye. And now new callers come—men to explain that there are certain debts unpaid, certain claims on property that must be met.

Inexperienced in business matters, desperately needing ready money, yet compelled to wait on the long, slow processes of law, she knows not whither to turn. Unexpectedly, the postman rings. He brings a letter from the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company. It contains a check for $2,000—and—the official notification that she will receive a check for $100 every month as long as she lives!

Would the above be a true account of what would happen if your wife should be the woman who had lost her husband? Or—would it be true in all particulars except the checks?

How Population Has Grown in L&N Served Territory

Population is always the gauge of prosperity. No matter what a state or community's natural resources are, its real wealth is no more than the extent to which its resources are developed. People are needed to till the soil, operate the mines, husband the stock, run the factories, and otherwise carry on the work necessary to the upbuilding of all land.

In 1850, when the L. & N. came into being, seven of the Southern states which it serves to-day (Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee) had an average population of 15 people per square mile. To-day, seventy four years later, this population is increased to 43.8—or nearly three times as many people as in 1850.

Adequate and reliable transportation, largely supplied by the L. & N., has made possible the growth of this territory. People have been brought from elsewhere to join in its development. Conveniently accessible markets have been provided for its products. Intercourse between the states, and with the rest of the world, has been made easy of accomplishment.

Important as this has been, the L. & N. has done still more. Through its Immigration and Industrial Department it has invested time and money in exploiting the South to other parts of the country. It has induced many farmers and manufacturers to come in and settle here, thus—in addition to its basic service as a carrier—making a definite contribution to the South's growth.

This work the L. & N. will continue to perform; constantly striving to make its service a greater and more helpful factor in the upbuilding of its territory.

Brilliant Ceremony Marks Bucknell-Potter Nuptials

Premiering outstanding in southern and eastern society was the marriage on Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the First Baptist church of Miss Sue Cunningham Bucknell, beautiful daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Howard Bucknell, foremost citizens of Atlanta, and Dixon Bayard Potter, scion of illustrious New York families. The marriage is the culmination of a betrothal announced some weeks ago at a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving club, followed by a series of brilliant prenuptial affairs, and has attracted perhaps greater interest than any event of the season.

The impressive ceremony, performed by Dr. W. W. Landrum, of Russellville, Ky., assisted by Dr. Charles W. Daniel, was attended by a notable company of friends and relatives, a large number of whom were distinguished visitors from eastern and northern cities.

The ceremony was followed by an unusually brilliant reception at the Piedmont Driving club, where the bride and groom were entertained by a large number of guests. The interior of the church was decorated with stately palms, evergreen and southern shrubs. The choir loft was banked with palms and the choir rail festooned with sunflowers, while placed at intervals were seven branched candelabras holding burning tapers, adorned with clusters of white lilies, tied with soft white tulle bows.

A program of beautiful musical numbers were rendered prior to the ceremony by Charles Sheldon, Jr., organist of the First Presbyterian church, assisted by Harry Pomar, violinist.

Wedding Attendants. The ushers entered the church first and were Harlan Bucknell and T. Powell Fowler, E. S. Joney, Donald G. Mixell, W. Gentry Shelton, Jr., Fritz R. Couder, Jr., L. Octave Blake and Henry Hilton Green and Robert L. Crawford, all of New York.

The little ribbon bearers, Mira Van Pelt and Master Peter Van Pelt, young children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Van Pelt, followed. The little Miss Van Pelt wore a quaint old-fashioned costume of pale blue tulle, and her becoming little pink bonnet of blue tulle, was trimmed with two pale pink plumes and pasted shaded French flowers. She carried a round old-fashioned bouquet of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots.

The bridesmaids descended in pairs down opposite aisles. They were: Miss Emmie Nixon, Miss Martha Boynton, Miss Mary Sheldon, Miss Jennie Robinson, Miss Douglas Paine, Miss Pauline de Givie, Miss Elizabeth Roberts, of Philadelphia, Pa., and Miss Bessie McKelvin, of Washington, D. C. Their costumes were of flesh colored tulle over foundations of white satin, and were girdled with peach colored grosgrain ribbon, ending in long streamers at the back. They wore picture hats of pink horsehair braid crowns and wide brims of peach colored tulle, and their flowers were cascade bouquets of sunset roses, white lilies and sweet peas.

The maid of honor, Miss Gwendolyn Graves, of New York, was gowned in rose-colored moire combined with tulle of the same shade. Her hat trimmed with rose velvet roses, and she carried a shower bouquet of pink tea buds and valley lilies.

The little flower girl, Laura Baxter Maddox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maddox, was gowned in a Kate Greenaway model of flesh colored tulle, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride and her father, Dr. Howard Bucknell, entered together, and were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Joseph Van Pelt, of Atlanta. She was beautiful in her gown of ivory tinted duchess satin trimmed with rose point lace. The long sweeping skirt formed the train, and the bodice was trimmed with a yoke of exquisite rose point lace. Her tulle veil fell over her face and in the back formed a court train. Her bouquet was of white orchids, white lilies and valley lilies, showered with white sprays of orchids, valley lilies and a shower of ivory tinted satin ribbon.

The reception at the Piedmont Driving club following the ceremony at the church, at which Dr. and Mrs. Howard Bucknell entertained, was perfect in every detail.

At one end of the ball room was the bride's table, elegantly appointed in every detail. The handsome cover was of real lace, and forming the centerpiece was the beautiful white wedding cake made in tiers embossed with white roses and valley lilies, and topped by a little white lace basket filled with white orchids and valley lilies.

Placed at intervals about the table were Italian urns of white marble filled with white lilies, white sweet peas and valley lilies, and white basket compotes held embossed mints.

At the girls' places were little white satin wedding slippers filled with rice, and at the men's places were miniature white satin top hats, also filled with rice. At the guests' places were white bisque Cupids holding wedding rings tied with tulle and valley lilies with monogrammed place cards attached.

Receiving with Dr. and Mrs. Bucknell were Mr. and Mrs. E. Clifford Potter, of New York; Mrs. William Bucknell, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Samuel Price Wetherill, Jr., of Philadelphia; Mrs. W. A. Graham, of New York; Mrs. George Cunningham, of Philadelphia; Miss Laura Miller, of Florida; Major and Mrs. Alfred Austell Cunningham, of Paris Island, S. C.; and Mrs. Joseph K. Van Pelt.

Mrs. Howard Bucknell, the bride's mother, wore a handsome model of pale green velvet broadened in velvet flowers. Her hat was of brown tulle and lace, and she wore a corsage bouquet of pale lavender orchids.

Mrs. Shanks Gives Lovely Bridge Party At Fort McPherson

Mrs. David C. Shanks entertained at an elaborate bridge party Tuesday afternoon at the Officers' club at Fort McPherson when she complimented her daughters, Mrs. William Malloy, of Long Beach, California, and Mrs. Stephen Chamberlin, of Fort Benning, Georgia, who are her guests at her home at Fort McPherson.

Mrs. William Johnston and Mrs. George H. McManus assisted Mrs. Shanks in entertaining and presided at the tea table.

Mrs. Johnston was gowned in black velvet, combined with grey fur and Mrs. McManus wore a model of blue Georgette over orange metal cloth.

Mrs. Shanks received her guests wearing an afternoon gown of grey georgette.

Mrs. Malloy was attractively gowned in black beaded crepe, and Mrs. Chamberlin wore an imported model of copper colored lace.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Mary Virginia Rapp, Miss Georgia E. Pepper, Miss Neil Kendrick, Miss Jean Kendrick, Miss Marion Darrah, Miss Jean Darrah and Mrs. Otto G. Frank, Mrs. J. N. St. John.

A large group of friends of the hostess were invited to meet the guests of honor.

York, the groom's mother, was gowned in a model of blue and white lace, with a picture hat of blue lace, and she wore a corsage bouquet of white orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. William Bucknell, of Philadelphia and Florida, the bride's grandmother, wore a gown of black and white lace combined, and a black hat trimmed with lace. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids.

Miss Edith Wetherill, of Philadelphia, Pa., cousin of the bride, kept the bride's register. She wore flesh and rose shaded chiffon, and a corsage was of pink tea buds and valley lilies.

Wedding Journey. Mr. and Mrs. Potter departed during the evening for a wedding trip which will include southern Spain and Egypt. They will reside in New York upon their return.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. Clifford Potter, of New York; Countess Margaret Pavlov, of New York; Mrs. Bowie, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. De Forest Grant, of New York; and Mrs. John Drexel, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Samuel Price Wetherill, Jr., also of Philadelphia, and her daughter, Miss Edith Wetherill.

Major and Mrs. Alfred Austell Cunningham, of Paris Island, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Cwen Roberts, of Philadelphia; Mrs. William Bucknell, of Harbor Oaks, Fla.; Miss Laura Miller, of Florida; and Mr. and Mrs. H. Green, of Pensacola, Fla.; T. Powell Fowler, E. S. Joney, Donald G. Mixell, W. Gentry Shelton, Jr., Fritz R. Couder, Jr., L. Octave Blake, Henry Hilton Green and Robert L. Crawford, all of New York.

Mrs. J. Summerville Hall, of Athens; Mrs. Gwendolyn Graves, of New York; Miss Bessie McKelvin, of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Gould Day, of New York, and Rust Oppenheim, of New York.

The bride is the representative of aristocratic Georgia and Pennsylvania families which have been identified with the early history of America. She was educated at Miss Baird's institute in Athens, going to National Cathedral school in Washington, D. C., for three years, afterward finishing her education at Miss Baird's school in East Orange, N. J. Following her graduation the bride and her mother traveled in Europe for eighteen months.

Mrs. Potter would have been in the list of popular debutantes this winter had she decided to be formally presented to society. She is one of the most beautiful young girls in the south, and her loveliness is an inheritance from her mother, whose name she bears, and from her lovely aunt, the late Mrs. Ruth Cunningham Raoul, an acknowledged belle. Mr. Harlan Bucknell, of Atlanta, and Mr. Howard Bucknell, of China, are her brothers.

Mr. Potter is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Clifford Potter, of New York, and his family is connected with the oldest and most distinguished families in the south.

The home of great-grandparents on his maternal side at Eighty-sixth street and Riverside drive still remains intact, and is known as the only wooden house now standing in the city.

Mr. Potter is a descendant of wealthy and influential families who have figured prominently in the upbuilding of New York. He is a graduate of Princeton in the class of 1918, and holds a membership in the leading social and business clubs. He is well known in the financial world.

Mr. and Mrs. Wachtel Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

Among the prominent social affairs of the week's calendar was the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Arthur A. Shulhofer entertained Monday evening, February 11, at their home on East Wesley avenue, in honor of the golden wedding anniversary of their father, a mason, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wachtel.

The lovely home was elaborately decorated for the occasion in quantities of yellow sunset roses, golden calendulas and jonquils. Golden baskets tied with gold ribbons were filled with the lovely blossoms and formed the decorations of the handsomely appointed table. Yellow tapers burned in candlesticks of gold.

A unique feature of the dinner was the place cards which were designed by Mrs. Shulhofer. On the front page of an attractive folder was an original verse, particularly suited to each guest. Inside were two photographs, one being a reproduction of the wedding party of Mr. and Mrs. Wachtel which was taken fifty years ago at their wedding, the other being a reproduction of the two honor guests.

Numerous toasts were given by the men who were guests at the party. Fritz David Marx, the principal speaker, paid a beautiful tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Wachtel, who are prominent and distinguished members of Atlanta's older citizenry.

Lovely Bridge-Tea Honors Visitors. Mrs. Olin Sanford Cofer was hostess at a beautiful bridge-tea at her home on North Boulevard Tuesday afternoon in compliment to Mrs. Conrad Frey, of Lynchburg, Va., and Mrs. Roy L. Neal, of Macon, Ga.

The lovely guests of Mrs. Benjamin Barron, and for Miss Marguerite Crowl, of Baltimore, the guest of Mrs. Pratt Hicks on Westminster drive.

The Valentine idea was attractively carried out in the decorations, red carnations and white narcissi being used.

Mrs. Howard H. Durham assisted Mrs. Cofer in entertaining. Hand-painted valentines were used as tally cards and the prizes awarded were French novelties.

The guests included Mrs. E. B. McDougald, Mrs. Frank Pharr, Mrs. Joe Thompson, Mrs. Fred Bell, Mrs. O. H. Matthews, Mrs. Annie Vandiver, Mrs. T. P. Hicks, Mrs. Roy L. Neal, Mrs. Conrad Frey, Mrs. Donald Denny, Miss Marguerite Crowl, and Mrs. Howard H. Durham.

Mrs. William Loshe To Be Honored. Mrs. Frank Burr will entertain at a buffet luncheon at her home on Peachtree Circle, Thursday, in compliment to her guest, Mrs. William Loshe, of San Francisco, Cal.

The guests will include Mrs. Marshall Goldman, of Columbus, Ohio, the guest of Mrs. L. S. Catron, Mrs. D. L. Robinson, Mrs. Walter Candler, Mrs. Harry J. Carr, Mrs. Fred Creswell, Mrs. Fred Rogers, Mrs. L. S. Catron, Mrs. Charles Coppock, Mrs. Charles Frederick, Mrs. John Henry Lewis, Mrs. Omar Elder, Mrs. James Senn, Mrs. Franklin Davis, Mrs. Berrin Upshaw, Mrs. C. J. Holdage, Mrs. Robert Goer, Mrs. Charles Kober, Miss Lillian Kailer, Miss Dorothy Holdage and Miss Elizabeth Catron.

Mrs. A. L. Kidd Is Honored at Bridge. Mrs. George Coder entertained at a bridge party Tuesday evening at her home on West Peachtree street in honor of her guest, Mrs. A. L. Kidd, of Birmingham, Ala.

Valentine decorations were carried out. Red carnations and white narcissi in silver vases were attractively arranged on the mantles and tables in the rooms where the guests assembled.

The place cards were in the shape of red hearts. The guest prize was a bottle of French perfume. A lovely yellow and black ten-set was given as top score prize. The consolation was a silver mirror. The guests included twenty friends of the honoree.

Atlanta D. A. R. Will Observe Georgia Day. The Atlanta chapter D. A. R. will observe Georgia Day at their regular meeting on Friday afternoon, February 15, at Craigie House. Mrs. Eun Wylie, regent, will preside.

A business meeting will begin promptly at 3 o'clock, at which time delegates will be elected to the continental congress in Washington, D. C., on April 14, 1924.

Miss Frances Woodberry will sing "Georgia," composed by the late Lottie Belle Wylie, author and poet.

The Honorable Alfred Newell, past president of the chamber of commerce, and one of Georgia's most distinguished sons, will make the address of the afternoon. His subject will be "Georgia."

Miss Frances Woodberry will sing a group of patriotic songs; Mrs. Alan Stanford, formerly of Buffalo, N. Y., pianist, will give a piano solo.

The meeting will close with the "Salute to the Flag." All D. A. R. are invited to be present.

Mrs. B. M. Boykin Addresses Decatur Woman's Club Meeting

The Decatur Woman's club held its regular meeting on Monday afternoon at the Episcopal parish house, with Mrs. Frank B. Pond the president presiding at which time the constitution and by-laws were adopted and the third Friday afternoon in every month was decided for the club to hold meetings, as this day does not conflict with any other organization.

Mrs. Boykin Speaks

After the business session Mrs. Pond introduced the speaker, Mrs. B. M. Boykin. In introducing she outlined Mrs. Boykin's magnificent achievement during her administration as president of the Atlanta Woman's club. And Mrs. Pond also paid a beautiful tribute to the Atlanta Woman's club stating that it was not only one of the finest woman's clubs in the country but that it was a living monument to womanhood. Mrs. Boykin outlined what it takes to make a successful woman's club. She emphasized the cooperation of members and upholding the president in whatever she does. And stated that the club was fortunate in having Mrs. Pond as president. A woman so well qualified and capable. She emphasized the need of leaders in an organization and how it may be developed. And also urged the need of large membership and each one to serve on committees that fit their ability.

Elected Honorary Member.

One of the outstanding features of the afternoon was Mrs. Boykin's election of first honorary member in appreciation of her helpful manner in which she outlined the proposed activities of the club and her assistance at all times when called for.

The election of officers was completed as follows: Mrs. Frank B. Pond, president; Mrs. R. G. Jones, first vice president; Mrs. W. D. Hoyt, second vice president; Mrs. A. F. Samuels, recording secretary; Mrs. Elizabeth Myers, corresponding secretary; Mrs. D. P. McGee, treasurer.

The chairman appointed included Mrs. W. S. Elkin, civic improvement; Mrs. Marshall George, membership; Mrs. Fred McDonald, social; Mrs. J. S. Elley, constitution and by-laws; Mrs. Eric Green, parliamentary; and Miss Helen Knight, press chairman.

Next Meeting.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the Decatur courthouse, Friday, February 15.

Dr. Dodge Speaks At Y. M. C. A. Tuesday.

Approximately seventy-five Y. M. C. A. business women assembled Tuesday evening at the Y. Peachtree Arcade, from 7 to 8 o'clock, to hear Dr. Witherspoon Dodge, pastor of the Central Congregational church, give the first talk of a series on current events. The topics discussed were the death of Woodrow Wilson and what his loss means to the political world of today, the Teapot Dome oil scandal, the controversy between the modernists and the fundamentalists, the Mexican situation, the death of Lenin and the effect of his passing on Russia's political future.

Those Who Contemplate Matrimony

Judge Bryan Speaks at Luncheon Of League of Women Voters

Judge Shepard Bryan, who was the principal speaker at the luncheon given under the auspices of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, Tuesday, at 12:30 o'clock at the Peacock cafe, gave a most instructive and interesting explanation of the evils of the fee system and the advantages of a salary basis.

Following the delightful luncheon, Mrs. Sanford Gay, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, welcomed the guests and introduced Judge Bryan.

"The women in this league," he said, "have an opportunity for public service which is unique. They stand for principle, not the individual. They are not seeking office themselves, therefore they give a clear, uninfluenced vote. Men usually are influenced by business reasons, friendship, and so on, so that, while many of them vote honestly, they will not come out and make a stand for what they believe to be right."

Miss Stokes Weds Joe Frank Stevens.

A marriage between two of the most prominent young people of the South, Miss Julia Frances Stokes, daughter of Mrs. McCrary, of Buena Vista, and Joe Frank Stevens, of Atlanta, which was solemnized Saturday, January 26, 5 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Fulford, Graymont Heights, Birmingham, Ala. Rev. George R. Stuart, pastor of First M. E. church, performed the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of only the immediate families and a few close friends.

The bride was lovely in a smart traveling gown of grey and blue crepe and a becoming hat of blue taffeta trimmed in burnt roses. Her corsage bouquet was of Onchelia roses and valley lilies.

She is a young woman of rare charm and beauty and has taught for the past two years in the Birmingham schools. She is a graduate of the U. S. C. W., of Milledgeville, Ga. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stevens, and is connected with John M. Conley company, and Mr. and Mrs. Stevens are at home to their many friends at their apartment, 124 Hopkinst street.

D. A. R. Chapter To Meet Friday.

The February meeting of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., will be held Friday, February 15, at 3 o'clock at the chapter house.

Receiving at the door will be Mrs. Allison Greene, chairman of hospitality, Mrs. Stillwell Robinson, and Mrs. Van Hook, assistants. Mrs. Charles E. Robertson will talk on current events and Dr. C. J. Harrell will speak.

All D. A. R. visitors in the city will be welcomed. Take Piedmont avenue car at Five Points, and stop at Piedmont Driving club, opposite Habersham hall.

Women To Register At P.-T. A. Meeting.

Registration is being made simple and easy work, through the efforts of the League of Women Voters and the Parent-Teacher associations.

At the William A. Bass Junior High school the women may register on Thursday morning at the Parent-Teacher association meeting at 10 o'clock. All women are urged to bring their registration fee of one dollar.

Mrs. Karl Brittain will speak on registration at this meeting. At the Parent-Teacher association meeting at Moreland Avenue school to be held on Friday at 3 o'clock the women are urged to come and bring a dollar and register, for Mrs. Tucker will be on hand to register them.

Mrs. Shallenberger Gives Concert.

Mrs. William F. Shallenberger, of Atlanta, was presented by the Savannah Music club recently in recital at the Lawton Memorial. Mrs. Shallenberger is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. S. Trosdal, in Savannah, and has been entertained at a series of parties.

She was most enthusiastically received at the concert, and her exquisite contralto voice was heard to charming advantage.

Mrs. Shallenberger was dressed for the last group of her songs in an old French costume of blue taffeta, with hooped panniers and the bodice opening over rose-colored silk. The high ruche of lace and a pink rose in her hair made the costume unusually becoming.

Miss Ethel Beyer, of Atlanta, was the accompanist and her artistic playing was a feature of the concert program.

Little Miss Selman Is Honored at Party.

Mrs. J. T. Selman entertained at a near dice party Friday afternoon at her home on Park drive in honor of her little daughter, Selma Barbara, whose seventh birthday was celebrated.

The prizes, which were a heart-shaped box of valentines, were presented to Mildred Baisden and Carol Quillian.

The house was decorated with red carnations and white narcissi. In the dining room the table had for its centerpiece a silver basket of red carnations. Encircling this were silver candlesticks holding red unshaded tapers.

Valentine suggestions were carried out in the minis and ices.

The seven little girls who were invited to meet the honor guest were: Jane Moffett, Paula Bishop, Rebecca Crawford, Carol Quillian, Mildred Baisden, Mary Elizabeth Smith and Charlotte Wright Selman.

Alumnae To Give Valentine Party.

All children are cordially invited to the Valentine party to be given by the Bessie Tift alumnae Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Louise Newton.

The rooms where the children will play will be decorated in a profusion of hearts and valentine favors. There will be several contests that will interest the children and games will be played. Ice cream cones will be sold, and an admission charge of 10 cents will be made.

Mrs. Jesse Daniel, the president, urges the mothers in the chapter to bring their children. The proceeds from this party will go to the scholarship fund.

A GREAT CONVENIENCE AND OH, SO GOOD!

Judge Bryan closed his talk with a rousing appeal to the women of the league as an independent influence, which could and should put over the right sort of government.

"Every man who asks for our vote," said he, "should come out and say that he approves the salary basis and that he will accept a good, fair, reasonable salary in preference to using the fee system, even though the law does not require it—even though the law remains unchanged."

Mrs. Gay then introduced Frank Carter, legal adviser from Mr. Richardson's office. Mr. Carter explained registration to the women.

The luncheon, which was a great success, was indicated by the Ninth Ward council which put the efficient chairman, Mrs. W. A. Arnold, in charge of affairs. Next week, on Tuesday at the same time and place, there will be held another luncheon, with school work and problems as the subject for discussion and information.

Mrs. Peebles Issues Notice.

IMPORTANT D. A. R.

"In about ten days the year books of the Georgia D. A. R. from 1891 to the present must go to the printer to be bound and ready for the state conference at Savannah.

"Gathering this data has been a long and arduous task, but the committee feels deeply grateful to those who have contributed.

"Just a few year books are lacking in order to have a complete file.

"Will you not search your files and donate these? The committee begs you to do this thereby showing your interest and loyalty to your state organization.

"We need the following years at the once: 1901, 1905, 1906, 1918 and 1919.

"Your state regent and your committee will appreciate your help.

Miss Miriam White Gives Valentine Party.

An enjoyable event of Saturday evening was a Valentine party at which Miss Miriam White entertained the members of the Wesley class of the Patillo Memorial church at her home, 209 Meade road, in Decatur.

The lower floor was transformed into a scene of loveliness. The massive fireplace was most attractively decorated with clinging ivy entwined with hearts and other valentine suggestions.

During the evening games were played in which everyone participated. The game of "Archer" proved most popular, the "Reds" winning by a small margin. Another interesting feature was the valentine box. "The Song of Love" was beautifully rendered by Miss Lois Brand, and Miss Irene Roberts favored the guests with several appropriate readings.

Mrs. Coolidge Is Principal Patroness.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge was the principal patroness for the special benefit performance of "Sun Up," the successful play written by Lulu Vollmer, of Atlanta, which was given last Monday evening in New York at the Prince Theater for the benefit of the Pi Beta Phi sorority's settlement school in Gatlinburg, Tenn. The performance was held under the auspices of the New York alumnae chapter of the sorority.

Mrs. Shallenberger was dressed for the last group of her songs in an old French costume of blue taffeta, with hooped panniers and the bodice opening over rose-colored silk. The high ruche of lace and a pink rose in her hair made the costume unusually becoming.

Miss Ethel Beyer, of Atlanta, was the accompanist and her artistic playing was a feature of the concert program.

Dr. Loveridge Will Lecture Today at St. Mark's Church

Of striking significance to all club women, church workers, social welfare leaders and home makers, is the series of lectures now being given by Dr. Blanche Grosbeck Loveridge at 11 o'clock on Wednesdays and Fridays in St. Mark's Methodist church, corner Fifth and Peachtree.

Wednesday morning's lecture will be on "The Great Urge to Action"—how to recognize it in ourselves and in others, how to call it forth into daily manifestation and how to give it positive direction toward any achievement which we really desire to attain.

Mrs. Spencer R. Atkinson, chairman of the committee of sponsorship, states that ample provision has been made for seating the audience comfortably so that everyone may have this opportunity to hear the discussion of this subject which all modern scientists have found to be the fundamental factor underlying all great achievement.

Says Mrs. Atkinson: "There is not one of us who has not some definite bit of work which we long to accomplish and many of us have been groping about a long time, trying vainly to find the successful way to do it. Dr. Loveridge is going to give us on Wednesday some proved and tested scientific methods which we can apply specifically to the solution of this individual problem of ours and we are confident that every one in attendance, Wednesday morning will feel that a great burden of uncertainty has been removed from her path of achievement."

The lecture will be held in the Sunday school room, which is entered on Fifth street, and will be opened promptly at 11 o'clock. Single admission is 75 cents. Four admissions may be had for $2.

Benefit Bridge at U. D. C. Chapter House.

A benefit bridge party will be given at the chapter house, Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., Friday afternoon, February 15, at 2:30 o'clock. Phillips, Mrs. Hal Hentz, Mrs. Mary Scott, Mrs. James Erwin, Mrs. Will C. King, Mrs. Forrest Kibben, and Mrs. J. H. Longino.

Individual prizes have been provided for each table and a special feature of prizes which will be given during the afternoon will be an unusual number of large home-made cakes contributed by chapter members and their friends. The proceeds will go toward special work on the chapter house, the party being sponsored by a division of the house committee.

Tables will be $2 each, and guests are requested to bring cards and provide themselves with pencils.

... it's a parlor, bedroom, kitchenette and boxroom, self-contained. . . and you'd be quite safe, of course. . . but, still. . .

Her husband broke in with a hearty: "Oh, she'd be all right, Maggie! Better for her than a hotel. And we'll be home tomorrow night."

"Thank you very much," said Prudence gently. "Gloomy as the outside of the great big building is, the flat promised refuge. And she hadn't any money for hotels!"

So the caretaker and his wife, greatly wondering at her advent in the city, took her up in the elevator to the eighth floor, and let her into their private premises.

"There's electric light, and I'll change the sheets of the bed in a jiffy," Capable Mrs. Smith soon had everything in readiness for the unexpected guest. "And there's bread and tea and supper in the cupboard, and some eggs. You use the gas cooker."

Then the pair had to hurry off to catch their train.

It was rather eerie in the flat, perched up so high above the world, and Prudence undressed quickly, climbing into the enormous feather bed.

No sooner was she there than—horror of horrors!—the thunder broke out in a fury, the lightning flashed, the rain came down in torrents! Prudence crawled below the bedclothes, trembling.

But the storm raged on and on, growing louder, till the crashes seemed directly overhead, and the room was brilliant with the lightning. The rain poured down as though all the waters of the universe had been let loose.

Prudence had read about the terrible air-raid in the great war, but none could ever have been louder or more intimidating than this ghastly storm.

Suddenly, the building seemed to totter as crash after crash deafened the crouching girl. She cried aloud in terror.

And then—above the storm—she heard the sharp ringing of the telephone beside the bed.

With trembling fingers she lifted the receiver from its hook.

"There was a long and eerie pause, and then a hoarse voice trickling from far away, across the wires, "Hello! Hello! Midhurst Building."

"Yes, Yes."

"Are you on fire?" The lightning hit a wire on the roof connecting with the motor-room, and—

The receiver fell from Prudence's fingers, as she leaped straight out of bed and to the door. She shot the bolt back, and a wave of terrific heat nearly overcame her as she fled down the blazing staircase, almost to her feet! The whole building was on fire! It was an old construction, and there was no fire-escape.

"Help! Help!" she screamed, slamming the door shut tight, and rushing to the windows.

But above the thunder nothing could be heard!

She staggered to the telephone, caught up the receiver, and shouted: "Fire! Send the fire brigade! Midhurst Building. . . What street?"

For a moment the storm lulled and outside the bedroom door she could now hear the loud roar of the flames and the terrible crash of falling debris. The room became suffocatingly hot.

The girl sank down upon her knees, and prayed. Eight stories up! Was any ladder long enough to reach her? Would help come in time to save her from an awful death? (Copyright, 1924 for The Constitution.)

INSTALLMENT 45

IN PERIL.

On the evening of the long heart-breaking day in New York city when every attempt at finding work had been frustrated, and never in all her life had she felt so utterly alone, Prudence hunted feverishly through a telephone book for the address of Midhurst buildings.

It wasn't there.

She asked a policeman, who informed her that probably such a building would be Brooklyn-way.

"Take the subway," he advised her. So—spending a nickel of her few remaining coins, away she rattled in the train.

"You'd best go in a postoffice, miss, and have a look at a directory," a policeman told her, when she reached the end of her trip. "But I'm afraid all office buildings will be locked up now. It's nearly eight o'clock."

A postoffice official found the address for her.

"You'll have to walk it. It's nearly a mile from here," he gave her intricate directions about the winding streets and alleyways that composed the world's financial mart.

Prudence lost her way several times over, and was further discomfited by a heavy shower of rain. The night was very close and sultry and thunder was about. She hated thunder, being terrified of storms.

Once a cow belonging to a neighbor, had been killed by lightning, and Prudence had an unreasoning terror in the matter.

At last she reached the tall, gloomy buildings where Janet Mercer's friend was caretaker, and on the very doorstep was the woman she sought, accompanied by her husband, who was carrying a suitcase.

"Mrs. Smith. . . It's me, Prudence. . . you remember. . ."

"Good gracious! Janet Mercer's friend! How are you, dear? And what brings you to the city?"

Mrs. Smith was genuinely astounded.

Prudence stammered out a vague story about coming to find work, and having lost her purse.

"But we'll lend you the money for your fare back, dearie. You'll be going home, of course?"

The girl's pale, tired face flushed up. That flush wasn't lost upon the kindly couple.

"I. . . I can't go home. . . not in the meantime. . . if you could just give me a bed for tonight. . . you promised you would. . . time. . ."

The girl implored.

Mrs. Smith exchanged glances with her husband.

"But we've just locked the whole place up for the night. We've got a holiday tomorrow, and we're catching the train for Atlantic City to visit my husband's sister."

Tears of fatigue and disappointment rose to Prudence's eyes, so that Mrs. Smith—to whom beauty in distress made irresistible appeal—said, quickly:

"Maggie, why shouldn't we let her have the flat tonight?"

His wife hesitated. She looked uncertainly at Prudence.

"Wouldn't you be afraid, in that great building, all alone? You could lock the door of the flat, of course."

MINE AGREEMENT IS BELIEVED NEAR

Jacksonville, Fla., February 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Substantial progress toward a wage agreement between the miners and operators of the central competitive field, had been made today when a joint sub-committee adjourned in commemoration of the birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln. Preliminary skirmishing was believed finished. Among the operators, the prevailing sentiment was for a three year contract at the present scale.

Eight operators and eight miners, two from each of the Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania districts, had been named to work with the three international officers of the miners' union and the joint conference officials, in preparing a tentative settlement for presentation to the entire joint conference. This group, acting as a sub-committee, held its first meeting this morning.

Tonight the majority of miners and operators representatives expressed belief the agreement was not far off. President L. L. Lewis expressed himself as pleased with the trend of affairs, and added that the miners, at the least, would hold out for a four year contract. Operators moved their headquarters to the hotel where President Lewis is staying, and announced informally that they had about decided upon agreeing to a renewal of the present wage scale, and would propose a one-year renewal, or a renewal for three years, but would oppose four years.

OFFICIALDOM CORRUPT DELARES BEVERIDGE

St. Louis, Mo., February 12.—Corruption "riots" throughout officialdom itself with no political party having a corner on second-rate Albert J. Beveridge, former United States senator from Indiana, declared tonight in an address before the Young Republican association of Missouri, at its Lincoln day meeting.

"We have enough government guardians of business conduct to stop a wife from taking money from the pockets of a sleeping and stinky husband; and yet fraud pollutes the veterans' bureau at Washington, the Teapot Dome rottenness contaminates the national government and an outstanding prohibition leader is convicted of forgery and graft."

"For years we have been riding for a fall. The Teapot Dome is but one evil shoot from the upsurge of spoliation that for years has been sucking the financial vitality of the nation. No matter what political party is hurt no matter what moral organization is discredited, no matter what eminent personage suffers let investigation tear that poisonous plant, root and branch, out of America."

SICK HEADACHE WAS RELIEVED

Missouri Lady Says She Was Miserable With Constipation and Sick Headaches Until She Used Black-Draught.

Forbes, Mo.—"I have used Black-Draught, when needed, for the past twenty-five years," recently said Mrs. Emma Grimes, who lives in "Green Valley Farm," near here, "and it has given perfect satisfaction."

"I began taking it for a bad case of constipation. I would get constipated and feel just miserable—sluggish, tired, with a bad taste in my mouth. I didn't feel like doing anything and soon my head would begin hurting and I would have a severe sick headache. I don't know who started me to take Black-Draught, but it did the work. It just seemed to cleanse the liver. Very soon I felt like new. When I found Black-Draught so easy to take and easy acting, I began using it in time and would not have sick headaches."

"I can recommend Black-Draught very highly for liver trouble, headache or constipation."

Constipation leads to a great deal of sickness among those who neglect to treat it without delay. The poisons which constitute your blood tend to re-absorb may cause great pain and much danger to your general health.

Keep Theodore's Black-Draught in the house and use it promptly for relief at the first sign of constipation. (adv.)

A WORD TO WOMEN

A hundred and twenty-one thousand women would comprise a vast army. Yet a canvass was recently made among more than that number of women who had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for feminine ailments. The result proved that ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use. This is most remarkable evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of womanhood, and should influence every sick and ailing woman to try it.

The Great Moment

BY ELINOR GLYN

But if he had or he had not, she could not help loving him! She was trembling all over now!

She rushed to the distorted mirror. No! she was not looking pretty! She was so pale! She had some scent in one of the gold-topped bottles. She would rub her cheeks and lips with that, to try and bring some color into them! Why had Augustine put in only this striped jersey frock? It was not becoming. Oh, would he never come?

She set about tidying the room, and she folded Bayard's clothes as she could, and put them on top of the valise. And her heart began to beat very fast with excitement. What would they say to one another—when he did come? And if he had some explanation to offer?—and—she did stay with him—and he was her husband... what would it be like? Confusion filled her—a strange weird fluttering feeling in her heart. And with her cheeks glowing now, she clasped her little hands. Footsteps were coming up the stairs. They were heavy footsteps, though. Bayard must still be very angry. There was a knock at the door.

She went to it and opened it. A strange man stood there with a big envelope in his hand.
"Are you Mrs. Bayard Delaval, ma'am?" he said, eyeing her curiously. Nadine felt her voice strange, she was so excited, she noticed a little consciously, and the man handed her the ominous-looking letter.

She opened it. It was a legal document, bearing the name of an eminent lawyer. She made out that it had something to do with an application for the annulment of marriage between Bayard Delaval and Nadine Pelham, with a lot of legal terms attached.

"Mr. Delaval asked me to show you where to sign, ma'am—I'm to act for you," the man said. And then by way of comforting her, he added: "It'll only take a short time before you're free!"

The blood all left Nadine's face—the shock was so great, and then all the pride in her nature came to her rescue, and she raised her little chin, and looked at the man straight in the eyes.
"Very well," she said, and walked to the table.

He gave her his stylus pen, and she signed firmly in bold characters, for the first and last time, "Nadine Delaval." Then quite calmly she handed the paper to the man, who was evidently to be her attorney, and thanking her, and saying he would communicate with her later, he left her alone.

But when she had gone, a pathetic little figure crept to the bed and flung herself down.
It was not whether Bayard had an explanation or not to offer, or whether he was worthy of some of the fence against her, or he was not. Fie! Bayard had set her free! And now she knew that she loved him, good or bad, guilty or not guilty, better than anything else in the world!

She was too unspookably wretched for tears, but she covered her face with her hands, and in doing so the hairpin wedding ring scratched her. For some unknown reason, connecting far back with the giving of this little circumstance angered her, and in a sudden gust of temper she pulled it off, and with a mocking laugh she twisted it straight, and into a hairpin again—and jumping up went to the mirror and put it into her hair.

She felt that she hated all men in the world. Bitterness alone filled her heart at the sorry ending to her love dream!

No one would have recognized the face which looked back at her as the little Nadine—the eyes were those of a hard cynical woman.
As she turned away, there was another knock at the door.

It was "Uncle Fredrick"—whom she did not remember seeing before. He brought a note, and said he would call again with the motor to take her to Gold Stamp at one o'clock, but he asked now for Mr. Delaval's things. Nadine pointed to the heap in the corner, and she controlled herself until the old man had left the room with them, then she tore open the envelope feverishly.

The letter was written upon the sheriff's paper. The writing was strong and firm, and rather English looking, not large and American like Sadie's and Mr. Bronson's, which she had chanced to have seen.
For a minute she held her breath, and a mist seemed to be rising before her eyes. Then she looked at the date.

The justice of the peace who married us is a friend of mine, so that will simplify the annulment proceedings, and you will be free in a very short time. I have wired to Miss Blenkinsop at Gold Stamp, and I calculate that it will reach her before the party can have left in the private car. I have asked her to remain and meet you—and I have arranged that the old man who brings this, Frederick Binwood, will accompany you back to Gold Stamp this afternoon. I am called away immediately to Rockers Point, where disturbances are taking place. Mr. Arlsen, who brought the preliminary application paper for you to sign will represent you, and send all communications to the Gold Stamp Palace hotel."

"I can only wish you all happiness in your future life, and express my sincerest regrets for having unwittingly caused you trouble in our short acquaintance."
"Yours truly,
"Bayard Delaval."

Nadine became icy cold as she read the last words. She felt as if death was clutching at her heart. Then she sank on to the bed in passionate weeping.
"O God!" she cried piteously—

THE TROUBLE WITH MAKING YOUR GIRL AN ORIGINAL VERSE VALENTINE IS SHE IS APT TO THINK THAT SHAKESPEARE WROTE IT AND YOU DON'T GET ANY CREDIT!

"Now I know what the snake dream meant!"
CHAPTER XX.
When Bayard had set the easy western law in motion he rushed to find Uncle Fredrick. He explained very briefly the truth to him, that Nadine had been unconscious at the wedding, and asked him to keep guard over her until he delivered her to her own people in Gold Stamp.

The old man, whose wits were sharp over the ways of humanity, grasped the situation. "It all seemed to me that you're best out of it. Those English aren't the same as us—they have their prejudices and their pomps and ceremonies. If you want the girl—court her proper like, in a city—not out here in the rough."

"You are perfectly right, Uncle. I was crazy!"
"My advice to you is—get clear off now to your work at Rockers Point. Bayard Delaval. Nasty things happen when you're in a city. You do of man's work to keep you from woman-grievin'—an then when you know, she's legally free, and has had time to think things over, and has you—so right after her and get her proper! But don't you stay now—you couldn't start with her on a fair plane even if you made it up—there'd be ugly recollections between you!"

Bayard nodded his head—this was good advice as far as getting off at once went. The opportunity should not concern him! He was through with weakness and women! He had time to think of that dairy exquisite bit of Dresden china out here in the wilds! He had simply been intoxicated with emotion and lost his sane point of view. There was no time, and of course to broad, for duty fortunately compelled him to start for Rockers Point immediately, now that the arrangements for Nadine's protection were completed. That minute a wire had been put into his hand from Blenk.

His leg caught her actually as she was getting on the train, and of course she had remained behind, and would await Nadine's arrival that evening at the Gold Stamp Palace hotel. Mrs. O'Hara had been instructed to go up with some light dinner at one o'clock, and Uncle Fredrick had a motor waiting to conduct "Miss Pelham" across the mountain and desert, immediately after.

So all was done and all was said, and now it simply behooved Bayard to be a man and get on with the work—grim enough—which lay in front of him.
So much for romance!

If he had been an Englishman, the slightly quixotic attitude that he had taken up would have struck him as perhaps a little dramatic, when later cold hours of reflection came; but above every other quality, American men are chivalrous to women to the point of being pusillanimous, and putting up with things, and caprices and reasonableness from them that no other nation would tolerate for a minute. Bayard was a masterful man, and accustomed to ruling, and would certainly rule the individual woman who should become his own, but the national point of view had naturally affected his attitude of mind on the subject of their treatment in general. It seemed to him then the course he had taken was the only one a gentleman could take, and he did not use his habitual method of psychological deduction to probe his motives, or he would have discovered that the gall to his pride was so great that it did not permit him to reason clearly. Now as he entered the car with a face set like iron, no thoughts of any future meeting with Nadine were in his mind. He had done with the episode in his life, and would give his whole force to his work ahead—which was heavy enough to keep him busy.

Uncle Fredrick stood by the car and gave him last instructions.
"You've got your gun in your belt, sonny," the old man said. "Let them see you're armed this time and mean business!"
Bayard, to please him, took the revolver from his pocket and slipped it in his belt, western fashion.

Then at the last minute he looked up at the window in the passage, which led to Nadine's room. Not with any hope of seeing her, because her windows looked out the other way, but with some uncontrollable sentiment. He started the motor, and as he did so, for a second he caught sight of a little white face peeping suddenly from behind the ragged curtain. It was just at the moment when Bayard put the revolver in his belt.

It was Bayard—her lover—her husband! He was going away! Then in a flash the motor passed, and she saw that hard cynical smile on his beloved face as he removed his cap. He had seen her! And again that feeling of death came over her, so that she had to clutch at the window frame or she would have fallen.

She had seen him from a window for the first time—her knight Bayard! And now it was from a window that she had seen him go—where? . . . Away out of her life into danger—there was a pistol in his belt! And how he must hate her to have looked at her like that! It was all cruel and unjust, and he must be a brute after all, and she would go back to Blenk and forget him! So at last the time came for her dinner and Mrs. O'Hara brought up a basin of broth, and a cup of coffee, and some little scones that she had made.

The kind woman believed in creature comforts. She knew nothing of a parting between the pair, and thought that her former good offices had patched things up. It was Bayard's having to go to Rockers Point into probable danger which she believed was now the cause of Nadine's depression. So she strove to hearten her.

"Sure, Mr. Delaval can shoot straight, ma'am," she said, "and knows how to defend himself, and always sees them things is fate, and there is no use worryin'." He'll be all right and back with you in Gold Stamp in that gorgeous hotel in no time. You must cheer up and be ready for him to have a fine honeymoon."

Nadine tried to smile; she felt that she would quite break down if she attempted to talk. So while Mrs. O'Hara poured out the coffee she listened to a string of Bayard's perfectations. How he was loved and respected—and how all the girls were crazy for him. And there ain't none around here's so much as given the chance to! You are sure lucky, ma'am!

Nadine felt as though the food would choke her, but swallowed what she could; she had never spoken, only nodded her head. Then finally Mrs. O'Hara left her, and not long after Uncle Fredrick came up to say the car was there.

Nadine got away at last, thanking Mrs. O'Hara for all her kindness, and the jolly creature waving her adieu.
"Well see you back again, dearie," were her last words.

Uncle Fredrick sat by the driver and spoke never a word, but he had taken Nadine's measure. She was a sweet hothouse flower, he decided, but you could not transplant them into the desert.

And in Nadine's heart there was wild rebellion against fate. Here she was going back to be caged once more! No—that she would never endure! She had heard much of the freedom of American women from Sadie. She would make her own life. She knew nothing of her father having denied that he had now a daughter, and expected that Blenk would have instructions to take her back to England to him.

Continued Tomorrow.

Wonder What a Special Delivery Stamp Thinks About

I'M THE IMPORTANT GUY AMONG STAMPS. I HATE TO TALK ABOUT MYSELF BUT IF IT WASN'T FOR ME IT WOULD BE A SLOW MOVING WORLD

-AND I COST TEN CENTS! THIS OTHER GUY BACK OF ME HAS TO TAG ALONG—HE'S JUST A PIKER—A TWO CENTER

WHEN FOLKS WANT THINGS DONE QUICKLY THEY CALL ON ME—WHEN I ARRIVE THEY KNOW IT'S IMPORTANT

THIS OTHER FELLOW BESIDE ME MIGHT HAVE BEEN BIG STUFF IN 1776 BUT LOOK AT HIM NOW—ONLY A TWO CENTER

WHEN A CARTOONIST IS BEHIND IN HIS WORK—WHO HELPS HIM OUT??? I'DO. HE KNOWS HIS FRIEND—I'VE SAVED HIS SKIN MANY A TIME

I COME HIGH BUT HE MUST HAVE ME—HE HAS MORE TIME FOR GOLF BECAUSE I GET HIS STUFF INTO THE OFFICE SOONER THAN IF HE DEPENDED ON THIS CHEAP TWO CENTER

I'VE CARRIED MANY A LOVE LETTER TO THE OLD FRONT DOOR—I CAN TELL BY THE HAPPY AND RELIEVED EXPRESSION ON HER FACE.

GOSH! BUT IM IMPORTANT

Capacity Audience Hears Concert by Fritz Kreisler

An exquisite melody, traced with fairy grace from a magic box in the hand of Fritz Kreisler, lingers in memory as something incomparably sweet and delicate. On the program it was "Midnight Bells," a Viennese melody, by Heuberg-Kreisler. It was next to the last number Kreisler presented last night at Wesley hall.

The audience compelled a repetition and Kreisler seemed glad to play it over. Personally, he could have kept on repeating it for many more times without danger of tiring his listeners.

Wesley hall was filled to its capacity. If there were any more, they were as few as not to be visible to the naked eye from a fairly good vantage point.

The program given by the great Austrian maestro was in three sections. The opening was the "C Minor Sonata" by Beethoven in three movements, remarkable for their weird effectiveness and odd effects.

One of Masters.

Part two presented the "D Major

Concerto" by Tchaikowsky, giving the performer a magnificent opportunity to display the wonder of his technique. The intricacies of this portion of the program left no doubt, if any there was, that Kreisler is the supreme master of the violin of modern days.

The third group was made up of his popularity, and though it probably betokened a lack in classic musical education, listeners undoubtedly enjoyed it most. The numbers, six of them were "Minuet" by Chopin; "Variations" by Tartin; "Melodie," Paderewski-Kreisler; "Mazurka," Kreisler-Kreisler; "Midnight Bells," Heuberg-Kreisler, and "Heure Kari" by Haydn.

For an encore at the end of the program, Kreisler played the "Capriccio Viennois," one of his own composition.

Mention must be made of the accompanist, Carl Lamson, who proved exceptionally capable.

"Bolshevist Bishop" Facing Charges of Extreme Heresy

DOUBTS JESUS LIVED, HE ASSERTS

New York, February 12.—Rev. William Montgomery Brown, of Galion, Ohio, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, and known to his opponents as "The Bishop of Bolshevism," was charged with charges of extreme heresy, it became known today.

The charges, framed by Bishops A. C. Hall, of Vermont; Joseph M. Francis, of Indianapolis; and William L. Gravatt, of West Virginia, and sent to the house of bishops, were based on statements made by Bishop Brown in his book "Communism and Christianity," and set forth that the churchman should not only believe in the doctrine of communism, but should also believe in the doctrine of socialism.

The charges were first preferred against Bishop Brown and it was expected that he would be tried for heresy with the house of bishops sitting as a high court. The charges were that Bishop Brown had circulated the "most pernicious propaganda against the church." A resolution adopted by the house of bishops, ordered that Bishop Brown "be deposed and excommunicated." Bishop Brown, however, never was placed on trial and refused to resign, standing at the time.

Some of the passages taken from Bishop Brown's book and upon which the heresy charges are based, follow: "God's in the shape of Jesus, Jehovah, Allah and Buddha are all right as subjective symbols of human potentialities and attributes and of natural laws, even as the stars and strings on a pole, Uncle Sam in the capital, and Santa Claus in the north, are all right as such symbols; but such gods are all wrong."

"I place the Brother Jesus of the Christian religion and the Uncle Sam of the American politics on the footing with each other and with others of their kind as subjective realities."

"The birth, death, descent, resurrection and ascension of all the Saviour-Gods, not excepting Jesus, are versions of the sun myth."

"There is no rational doubt about the fictitious character of the Divine Jesus."

Doubts Jesus Lived.

"... Orthodox Christians say that Jesus founded their sectarian world, who takes a flyer in holiday world, only to find that it is not the enduring kind. Mr. Holt is ideal as the man-about-town, while Agnes Ayres has the sympathetic role of the neglected Alice Melburn. Miss Naldi, the vivacious, temperamental prima donna, cannot find an equal anywhere in the picture world."

The overture for the week is "Atlanta Forward March." This overture was composed by Enrico Loda and dedicated to the city of Atlanta. The prologue is, Smiling Harry Philwin, "The Apostle of Happiness," baritone.

Paulowa.

(Coming to Atlanta Theater.)

When she returned to America following her remarkable triumphs in England, Anna Pavlova, the greatest prima donna, cannot find an equal anywhere in the picture world.

The overture for the week is "Atlanta Forward March." This overture was composed by Enrico Loda and dedicated to the city of Atlanta. The prologue is, Smiling Harry Philwin, "The Apostle of Happiness," baritone.

churches, though each sect insists that He had to do with only one church, theirs. I doubt that He lived."

As an objective truth, there is no such thing as the "Bolshevist Bishop." The Father, Son and Holy Spirit—He is a subjective existing in the imagination of Orthodox Christians."

The charges, framed by Bishops A. C. Hall, of Vermont; Joseph M. Francis, of Indianapolis; and William L. Gravatt, of West Virginia, and sent to the house of bishops, were based on statements made by Bishop Brown in his book "Communism and Christianity," and set forth that the churchman should not only believe in the doctrine of communism, but should also believe in the doctrine of socialism.

The charges were first preferred against Bishop Brown and it was expected that he would be tried for heresy with the house of bishops sitting as a high court. The charges were that Bishop Brown had circulated the "most pernicious propaganda against the church." A resolution adopted by the house of bishops, ordered that Bishop Brown "be deposed and excommunicated." Bishop Brown, however, never was placed on trial and refused to resign, standing at the time.

Some of the passages taken from Bishop Brown's book and upon which the heresy charges are based, follow: "God's in the shape of Jesus, Jehovah, Allah and Buddha are all right as subjective symbols of human potentialities and attributes and of natural laws, even as the stars and strings on a pole, Uncle Sam in the capital, and Santa Claus in the north, are all right as such symbols; but such gods are all wrong."

"I place the Brother Jesus of the Christian religion and the Uncle Sam of the American politics on the footing with each other and with others of their kind as subjective realities."

"The birth, death, descent, resurrection and ascension of all the Saviour-Gods, not excepting Jesus, are versions of the sun myth."

"There is no rational doubt about the fictitious character of the Divine Jesus."

Doubts Jesus Lived.

"... Orthodox Christians say that Jesus founded their sectarian world, who takes a flyer in holiday world, only to find that it is not the enduring kind. Mr. Holt is ideal as the man-about-town, while Agnes Ayres has the sympathetic role of the neglected Alice Melburn. Miss Naldi, the vivacious, temperamental prima donna, cannot find an equal anywhere in the picture world."

'3RD' PARTY ISSUES CONVENTION CALL

St. Louis, February 12.—A resolution adopted today at the convention of the national conference for progressive political action calls for a convention of "workers, farmers and progressives" at Cleveland, starting July 4. Delegates explained this action "paves the way" for a third party for political parties.

The resolution sets forth that the convention shall be for the purpose of taking action on the nomination of candidates for the office of president and vice president, and on other questions that may come before the convention.

This wording was carefully devised, conference leaders explained, to leave the way open for one of the three following lines of action:

1. Informing the democratic and republican parties that neither's candidate for president is acceptable to this body if such is the case.
2. If either the democratic or republican candidates is acceptable, endorsing that one.
3. Nomination of an independent ticket.

The resolution provides that the formal call for the convention shall be issued by the national committee of the conference.

The plan of the conference for delegate apportionment at the convention follows:

Three delegates each for political parties, farmers and co-operative societies of national scope and national and international organizations of labor; two delegates for each of the 30-odd state organizations of this conference, state federations of labor, state legislative boards of transportation organizations—apparently meaning railway labor unions—and state committees of political parties; one delegate each for every general central body of labor, every local organization of farmers and local co-operative societies in states having no state organizations of such bodies.

The republican national convention will start at Cleveland June 10 and the democratic at New York, June 24. Democratic leaders believe their meeting will be over before July 4, when the "progressive" convention opens.

BILL TO SUSPEND ALL IMMIGRATION 5 YEARS KILLED

Washington, February 12.—(Special.)—The senate immigration committee refused Tuesday to report favorably the bill of Senator W. J. Harris to suspend all immigration for five years. The direct result of the committee's action is that restrictive legislation of some kind is assured which will be determined after the committee holds hearings. Senator Harris said the committee would carry out the policy of restriction with the likelihood of a 2 per cent quota basis.

Among the government's followers there has developed some open criticism of the government's manner of framing the measure, surprise being expressed that a politician of Mr. Poincare's nationality and tactical ability had spread such an important bill over 100 articles instead of bunching it into five or six.

Meantime there is in circulation in the chamber a list showing a new cabinet with every portfolio accounted for, led by a prominent political leader and destined to replace the Poincare government in the event of its fall.

Two Young Men, Whisky and Car, Caught in Chase

Harry Cathran, 21, of 87 Druid place, and F. E. Hall, 27, of 321 Cherokee avenue, were arrested by Detectives Mosley and Roper late Tuesday night following an automobile chase which ended in the capture of an automobile driven by the two young men which was found to contain 17 gallons of whisky.

The two men were first observed on Edgewood avenue by detectives. Suspecting they had whisky in their machine officers started in pursuit. A lively race, which led to East Atlanta and then to Whiteford avenue ended in the halting of the fleeing machine when pistol bullets from the police machine punctured its rear tires.

The two occupants leaped out of the machine and made a dash into a patch of woods. After a 100-foot race between officers and the young men they were overtaken.

Officers stated that during their flight the occupants of the pursued car tossed many bottles of whisky into the street.

Scandalous Waste Of War Materials In France Charged

Paris, February 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Scandalous waste of American war materials purchased by France at the end of the war was charged today in the chamber of deputies during debate on the government's bill to enforce economy and additional taxation.

Deputy Georges Levy, communist, demanded that an investigation committee, composed of war veterans, be appointed and asked confiscation of the property of those engaged in "pillaging" the stocks. The proposal was rejected, 206 to 75.

"You will be known to history as the House of Scandal," Deputy Levy witheringly declared after the vote. During the debate Deputy Cathran brought out that the government agreed to pay 15,000,000,000 paper francs for the material.

The cabinet at a meeting today is understood to have discussed means for foiling the maneuvers of the opposition which has delayed progress on the bill for three weeks. Close followers of the government say the advisability was discussed of the premier demanding that the chamber immediately pass the remaining 106 articles on line after article III had been voted, making it a question of confidence and placing upon parliament the responsibility of either adopting the measures or overthrowing the government.

Article III calls for a levy of 20 per cent additional taxation on all the direct and indirect tax rolls now effective in France. It is regarded as the most important article in the bill. Already 19 amendments have been rejected.

Premier Poincare's health has been shaken under the strain of attending two sessions of the chamber daily and incessantly injecting himself into the debate.

CHARGES AGAINST "FALL" OF RUSSIA ARE ANNOUNCED

Moscow, February 12.—The charges against A. T. Krasnotchekoff, former premier of the far eastern republic and ex-president of the trade industrial bank, who is shortly to face trial before the supreme court, were announced today.

Krasnotchekoff, who was formerly a lawyer in Chicago, where he was known as A. S. Tobolsky, is accused of embezzlement of funds of the Russian-American industrial corporation. It is alleged that he engaged in revels, squandering the bank's money lavishly and throwing gold coins to giddy girls.

DUNLAP URGES BONUS AT DAWSON MEETING

Dawson, Ga., February 12.—(Special.)—A mass meeting called by the Davis-Daniel post, American legion, at the Terrell county court house here Monday night was addressed by Edgar B. Dunlap, of Gainesville, state commander of the American legion and a member of the national legislative committee.

He presented the legion's views and discussed at length the adjusted compensation bill and the Mellon tax reduction measure. Mr. Dunlap presented figures showing that the adjusted compensation act would not cause a financial deficit but on the other hand would prove of considerable benefit.

Judge M. C. Edwards of this city discussed tax reduction in a central concert band.

Cargo of Death Explodes; Driver Blown to A toms

Neodesha, Kan., February 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—Harry T. Mical, an employee of the American Supply company, of Independence, Kansas, was blown to atoms when a motor truck, loaded with between 400 and 500 units of nitrocellulose, which was being transported from Tulsa, Okla., to the oil fields near Garnett, Kansas, blew up on a highway three miles north of Atchison, late today.

Arrived left Tulsa early today for Garnett over rough and muddy roads, with his dangerous cargo. His truck was seen to pass here about 9 o'clock.

Reports from Parsons, Cherokee, Coffeyville, Pittsburg, Chanute and Fredonia and a number of towns in this vicinity, stated that the explosion was heard plainly and in some instances houses and stores were rocked by the blast.

21 ENTER PRIMARY IN BUTTS COUNTY

Jackson, Ga., February 12.—(Special.)—The Butts county primary will be held March 19 in connection with the presidential preference primary. Entries will close on March 1. To date 21 candidates have announced, the largest number being for tax collector, with seven entries. Six candidates are in the field for tax receiver, three for treasurer and three for sheriff. It is not thought likely that the old officers for ordinary, clerk and county school superintendent will be opposed.

APPEAL IS MADE TO KEEP BLOOD OF WHITES PURE

Richmond, Va., February 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—An appeal for passage of a bill designed "to preserve the integrity of the white race" was made today by John Powell, pianist and composer, and president of the Anglo-Saxon Clubs of America, in an address to members of the Virginia general assembly.

The measure, which is on the senate calendar for advancement to third reading tomorrow, provides for the registration of all persons in Virginia as to race, strict records on all births and defines a white person.

The measure also continues in force the present state law prohibiting white persons marrying anyone not of the same race.

100x190 ft. on Two Prominent Streets
3 Blocks From Peachtree

This is the kind of investment that has made millions for early Atlanta settlers. Almost in the heart of the downtown section, a dandy level corner, right in the path of big developments. The owner asks us to sell this at once at a figure far below the real value. Part cash or clear property in trade will be considered.
